Saying Goodbye

To a Cincinnati Legend

failed to fulfill much of its promise. The stadium failed in its role as a catalyst for economic development, and its architecture and ambience were criticized by fans who found its sterile symmetry lacked character. But, on the baseball we saw there. Cinergy Field/Riverfront Stadium will be fondly remembered as the home of one of baseball's greatest teams and the site of the franchise's most historic moments.

Riverfront's predecessor saw its share of history. Crosley Field was the site of the first night game, Johnny Vander Meer's first no-hitter, two All-Star Games, and the deciding game of the 1940 World Series, but Riverfront was the home over location and design, and two and one-half years of construction, Riverfront Stadium opened to great fanfare on June 30, 1970. Its circular shape, combined with an AstroTurf surface, represented the state-of-the-art in stadium design.

Round, multi-purpose stadiums in St. Louis, Oakland, Atlanta, San Diego and the Houston Astrodome had recently opened. Similar stadiums were under construction in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Riverfront was in the vanguard of what appeared to be the shape of the future.

The startling contrast with 60-year-old Crosley Field was dramatic; Riverfront signaled a new era in Reds baseball. The stadium was also cast as a major player in the revitalization of downtown.

Thirty years later it is apparent that the stadium everywhere with the best baseball the game has ever seen. Riverfront became baseball's showplace in the 1970s, beginning with the memorable 1970 All-Star Game. Add to that the coronation of "Hit King" Pete Rose in 1985, Tom Browning's perfect game in 1988, the exhilarating sweep of the Oakland A's in the 1990 World Series, and the tragic death of umpire John McSherry on Opening Day 1996, and Riverfront Stadium ranks as one of baseball's most historic parks.

The Reds hosted 22 postseason games in the 1970s - the most of any team. Through the 2001 season, Riverfront/Cinergy (it was re-named in 1996) has been the site of 30 postseason games (in eight different seasons) and two All-Star Games.

Although plans for a new ballpark to replace Crosley Field (home of the Reds since 1912) first surfaced in the 1920s, it was due to the muscle of the slugging Redlegs of the mid-1950s and the surprise pennant winners of 1961 that finally what to do with Crosley Field. Owner Powel Crosley and his successor Bill DeWitt, upset with the slow response of the city to develop more parking near the ballpark, entertained offers to move the Reds out of Cincinnati.

By the early 1960s, civic momentum was clearly moving in the direction of a new ballpark, and one that would be publicly financed. The most serious debate persisted over location and pitted city leaders against owner DeWitt.

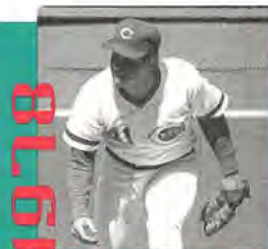

The city's 1948 master plan called for a new ballpark on the riverfront, and city leaders favored the downtown site, in part to help spur an overall revitalization of the central business district. But DeWitt opposed the site. He explored several options in Hamilton County and as far north as the future Kings Island theme park site but was unable to put a deal together. Meanwhile, Cincinnati landed an NFL franchise, which also needed a new stadium. Plans began to appear for a round, multi-purpose arena with an artificial surface to accommodate both baseball and shoved the issue of a new ballpark to the forefront of public debate. With the club drawing over one million fans for the first time (in 1956 and 1961), it became clear that the location of Crosley Field was inadequate to handle such crowds. The surrounding neighborhood, with its densely-packed brick tenements and aging factories linked by narrow streets, did not lend itself to rapid improvement. Parking and traffic issues dominated the early discussion of football.

DeWitt believed that the riverfront location and the multi-purpose design would not succeed, and in late 1966 he sold the club rather than sign a long lease for what he feared would be a "white elephant."

The new ownership group, led by (Cincinnati Enquirer) publisher Frank Dale, immediately signed a 40-year lease for the new riverfront stadium.

While the location was finally set, the stadium still did not have an official name. Opinion polls by the local press discovered sentiment for a variety of namesakes: Taft, Eisenhower, Rhodes (Governor James), Crosley, Hutchinson (Fred), and Armstrong (Neil). Other proposed names included Regal Stadium, Queen City Stadium, Riverbank, Buckeye Bowl and the to-the-point Reds/Bengals Stadium. Finally the unofficial name the project had carried since it was first proposed became official: Riverfront Stadium.

Regardless of the official name for the new stadium, for most of the late 1960s, people called it "expensive" and "delayed." In 1965, the price tag was put at $20 million. By 1966, estimates reached $43 million, and the final bill was $52 million. The original construction timetable called for the stadium to open in 1967; the date was pushed back to August 1968, then to 1969, then to the beginning of the 1970 season and finally to June 30, 1970, which proved to be the opening date.

The opening of the new stadium was the major challenge facing the new ownership group and they turned to Bob Howsam, a long-time owner and general manager, who had considerable experience and success in opening stadiums in Denver and St. Louis. Howsam was similar to the proposed Riverfront Stadium.

Howsam was not involved in the initial planning of Riverfront, but he oversaw the design of the stadium's baseball features as they evolved. The original plans called for a plexiglass barrier behind home plate similar to the backstop at Crosley Field. Howsam eliminated it.

"It blocks out the sound which is a big part of fan enjoyment," Howsam said. (He was forced to leave the plexiglass barriers in front of the private suites and the press box, however, because of the cold-weather concerns of his co-tenants, the Bengals.)

Howsam also changed the location of the bullpens, moving them along the foul lines where fans could see them.

"We made a mistake in St. Louis by putting the bullpens out of sight," Howsam recalled. "As soon as the fans see a pitcher warming up, they all become instant managers."

Howsam's major contribution was the introduction of the all-AstroTurf field, leaving only the sliding pits, the mound and the home plate area in dirt. Riverfront was the first to have this design, and while the National League office approved the concept, it was reluctant to part with tradition. Howsam was ordered to paint what would have been the dirt part of the infield brown. But the manufacturer of AstroTurf, Monsanto, could not guarantee a paint. The decorating plans were swapped, thus sparing fans the pretense of artificial grass posing as artificial dirt.

But the paint issue was of little concern to Howsam. He had what he wanted: a fast, carpeted field. Howsam had performed the ultimate in baseball's nefarious tradition of doctoring fields. He had created a permanent surface that would reward the type of players he coveted most: those with speed.

Howsam set about transforming the powerful but slow Reds lineup of the Crosley Field era unlikely that Howsam would have fashioned the trades that brought Joe Morgan, Cesar Geronimo and Bobby Tolan to the Reds, nor would the club have been as quick to draft such speedsters as Ken Griffey Sr.

Although fans and critics have shed few tears as Riverfront and the other AstroTurf "concrete donuts" of the 1970s have given way to grass fields and baseball-only parks, Riverfront Stadium into a sleeker version that would soon become famous as the Big Red Machine.

Without the move into Riverfront Stadium, it is deserves to be remembered as a critical "tenth man" in the Big Red Machine lineup, and one of baseball's most historic venues.

The Cincinnati Reds will open the 2003 Major League season in their new home - Great American Ball Park. The state-of-the-art facility will overlook the mighty Ohio River, while accommodating 42,000 fans.

NAME, LOGO, COLORS

2002 CINCINNATI REDS

Cincinnati Nicknames Over the Years

The Cincinnati franchise began play in 1869 as the Red Stockings due, not surprisingly, to the color of their game hosiery. The club has undergone a few name changes over the years, first shortening the name to Reds, then briefly during the 1950s, being known as the Redlegs.

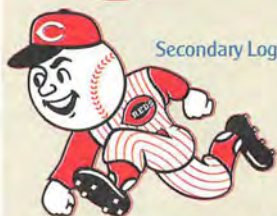

Opinions vary as to exactly when "Red Stockings" became shortened to just "Reds," but team histories refer to the club as Reds when the National League was founded in 1876, and by 1882 the more formal Red Stockings name was no longer in favor. In fact, instead of "Red Stockings," fans of that era might have been more likely to refer to the Cincinnati team as the "Porkopolitans," a reference to the city's (and the club hierarchy's) interest in the meat-packing industry.

During the 1950s, the era of Joseph McCarthy and the Red scare, the term "Red" was seen in a very different light. Thus during the seasons of 1953-58, the Cincinnati ballclub was called the Redlegs, so as not to give any appearance of an affiliation with Communism.

John L. Allen

Chief Operating Officer

John L. Allen was named chief operating officer on Oct. 1, 1999, following the purchase of a majority of the Reds' shares by a group of limited partners led by Carl H. Lindner.

On June 12, 1996, Mr. Allen was named "interim" managing executive when Reds president and CEO Marge Schott relinquished her day-to-day control of the team, per an agreement with Major League Baseball. He was named managing executive on Aug. 9, 1996.

Mr. Allen, who originally joined the organization in May 1995 as controller, has received widespread praise for his innovations in running the club. Baseball fans, baseball executives and the Greater Cincinnati community have responded warmly to his fan-friendly outreach and to the renewed sense of fun, excitement and history at Cinergy Field.

In January 1997, John spearheaded an effort to create Redsfest, a fan festival at the Convention Center downtown that has given fans in the Cincinnati community an opportunity to enjoy close interaction with the Reds' organization. Redsfest quickly became a Cincinnati winter tradition. More than 56,000 fans have enjoyed the event, which includes autograph and photograph opportunities with former and present Reds players, question and answer panels, clinics and the chance to view Reds memorabilia.

Mr. Allen has "put the focus back onto the playing field" rather than on the Reds' front office or on the business side of baseball. His agenda has included such fan-friendly activities as increased player contact for fans, the annual winter caravan, season ticket holder luncheons, decoration of the stadium, ticket discounts, guest public address announcers, "Stand By Your Red" and "Run the Bases." Each of the past six seasons has included a "Celebration of Diversity Day" to welcome and include fans of all backgrounds.

Under Mr. Allen's tutelage, special efforts have been made to recognize the organization's rich history. Replicas of the retired jerseys of Fred Hutchinson and Johnny Bench were displayed for the first time in a special ceremony on Sept. 1, 1996. During the 1998 season, the organization retired the jerseys of Joe Morgan, Frank Robinson, and Ted Kluszewski. In 2000, the uniform No. 24 of Tony Perez joined that group, while Dave Concepcion and Manager Sparky Anderson were enshrined in the club's Hall of Fame. Last season, Mario Soto and Bob Ewing were enshrined in the Hall of Fame.

John began his baseball career in 1990 as an intern with the Columbus Clippers, the Class-AAA minor league affiliate of the New York Yankees, and subsequently named the club's director of business operations. While with the Clippers, he performed a wide variety of duties in addition to overseeing business operations. While in Columbus, he also earned a master's degree in sport management at The Ohio State University.

John was born in Norton, Kan. and graduated from Norton Community High School, where he participated in baseball, football, basketball and track. He served in Vietnam, where he was wounded in action and decorated for his efforts. Following active duty, he attended college on the G.I. Bill and in 1974 earned his undergraduate degree at Kansas State University. John currently serves on the Finance Advisory Board at Kansas State.

Before he entered the baseball industry, Mr. Allen worked with the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen in Kansas City, Mo., and also with GRA, Inc. of Merriam, Kan., where he was a partner and senior vice president.

Mr. Allen has been honored with the Certificate of Friendship from the Cincinnati Human Relations Commission and the Community Service Award from the Talbert House. He also has been honored by Cincinnati Magazine in its annual "Best of Cincinnati" issue.

He is a lifetime member of the American Legion and Disabled American Veterans organizations. He also is on the Board of Directors of The Cincinnati Reds Community Fund, the Dan Beard Council of the Boy Scouts of America and serves on the Kid Glove Committee. In 2000 Mr. Allen was the honorary game chairman for the Kid Glove game at Cinergy Field. He also serves on the advisory board for the Cincinnati chapter of Operation Smile.

John and his wife Anna, reside in Park Hills, Ky. John has a son, Christopher, and a daughter, Sarah.

Since 1996 John Allen has taken great steps in publicly recognizing the organization's rich history.

He not only reinstituted the retiring of Reds uniform numbers, but also the continuation of the Reds Hall of Fame.

In January 1997 John led an effort to create Redsfest, a fan festival at the Convention Center downtown that has given fans in the Cincinnati community an opportunity to enjoy close interaction with the Reds' organization. Redsfest has quickly become a Cincinnati winter tradition with more than 56,000 attending since its inception.

James G. Bowden IV

General Manager

The 2002 season is Jim Bowden's 10th as general manager of the Reds. His 10 consecutive seasons with the Reds is the second-longest active tenure of any general manager in Major League Baseball.

On Oct. 16, 1992, Bowden (pronounced "BOE-den") made baseball history when, at the age of 31, he became the youngest person ever named to a Major League general manager's position. Among big league GMs since then, Bowden's 705 victories rank third only to John Schuerholz' 851 wins with the Atlanta Braves and John Hart's 794 victories with the Cleveland Indians.

Considered one of the brightest and most innovative minds in the game of baseball today, Bowden has kept the Reds competitive despite its small-market stature. From 1998-2000, the Reds' 258-229 (.530) record was eighth-best in the Major Leagues, while its payroll ranked only 24th of the 30 teams during that time. He has also overseen the rebuilding of the organization's scouting and player development system. Prior to the 2001 season, Baseball America ranked the Reds' minor league system as the third best in baseball. OF Adam Dunn, a product of that farm system, finished tied for fourth in 2001 National League Rookie of the Year balloting after he was named the top prospect in both the Class-AA Southern League and the Class-AAA International League by Baseball America and Minor League Player of the Year by Baseball Weekly.

Under Bowden's guidance, the Reds have won two National League Central Division titles (1994, 1995) and, in 1995 at the age of 34, he became the youngest GM in baseball history to guide his club into the League Championship Series. Following that '95 campaign, a season in which he made several successful roster moves that propelled the Reds into postseason play, Jim was selected by USA Today baseball beat writer Rod Beaton as the National League's Executive of the Year.

Following the 1999 season - when the Reds finished 96-67, the club's highest victory total since 1976 and forced a one-game playoff with the Mets for the final NL Wild Card spot - Bowden was named Executive of the Year by Baseball America, the Boston chapter of the prestigious Baseball Writers Association of America and the Touchdown Club of Columbus. He also was named 1999 National League Executive of the Year by national baseball writer Jon Heyman of Newsday and 1999 Major League Executive of the Year by Mike Mittleman of Stats, Inc. USA Today Baseball Weekly's Bob Nightengale wrote, "Jim Bowden is the best wheeler-dealer in the business."

One of Bowden's strongest suits is the ability to see potential where no one else does. He has had two Comeback Players of the Year, Ron Gant in 1995 and Eric Davis in 1996, as well as Pete Harnisch, who was a finalist in 1998. In 1996 Bowden signed Jeff Brantley after he had been released. Brantley went on to win the NL Rolaids Relief Man Award that year. The following year, Jeff Shaw, who had been signed to a minor league contract in 1996, accomplished virtually the same feat. Shaw, after spending the 1996 season as the setup man for Brantley, replaced him as the closer and won the 1997 NL Rolaids Relief Man Award. Bowden also tabbed flamethrower Scott Williamson as being ready for the big leagues after only one full professional season before the young right-hander went on to win 1999 NL Rookie of the Year honors.

Always aggressive and unafraid to take the chances necessary to compete in a "small market," Bowden has proven he is willing to do what is necessary for the long-term success of the organization. Following the 1997 season, the Reds sent RHP Jeff Brantley, just one year removed from winning the Rolaids Relief Man Award, to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Dmitri Young, who proceeded to post four consecutive .300+ batting averages. On March 30, 1998, the Reds dealt RHP Dave Burba, the scheduled Opening Day starter, to the Cleveland Indians for Sean Casey, who has become an All-Star first baseman. Finally, on Feb. 10, 2000, Bowden orchestrated the trade that brought superstar Ken Griffey Jr. back to his boyhood hometown of Cincinnati.

Bowden began his career in 1984 with the Pittsburgh Pirates and spent 1985-88 as the

2002 Reds Front Office

2001 All-Star Game

72nd Annual MLB All-Star Game

July 10, 2001

Seattle, WA (Safeco Field)

Series Record: 40-31-1 (NL leads)

Streak: AL has won five straight

REDS' ALL-STAR

Cincinnati's Sean Casey made his second career All-Star appearance in 2001. The Reds' first baseman, who was the lone Reds' representative at this past season's festivities, was hitting .329 at the break with 10 homers and 61 RBI. He led the team in all three categories.

From the 2000 All-Star break to the 2001 break (approximately a full season), Casey hit .348 with 25 homers and 123 RBI - some of the best numbers posted by any NL first baseman during that period. In a 2001 season marred by injuries and a subpar record by the Reds, Casey provided one of the few bright spots.

Casey's last All-Star appearance came in 1999, which was just his second full season in the bigs. He joined teammates Barry Larkin and Scott Williamson on the NL's All-Star roster that season. Entering the break in '99, Casey was hitting a league-leading .371 and had tallied 17 homers and 57 RBI.

ALL-STAR MVP

Cal Ripken Jr., while competing in his final All-Star Game, won his second MVP award. Ripken, a 19-time All-Star, went 1-for-2 with a third-inning home run off the Dodgers' Chan Ho Park to win the All-Star MVP award.

Ripken, who holds the ML record for most consecutive games played (2,632), has played in every All-Star Game since 1983. The two-time AL MVP ('89 and '93) retired at the conclusion of the 2001 season.

GAME RECAP

In his final All-Star appearance, Cal Ripken Jr. provided quite a show.

Ripken upstaged new kid Ichiro Suzuki, home-run hero Barry Bonds and every other big name in Seattle's Safeco Field after hitting a home run and winning the MVP award to lead the American League over the National League, 4-1, on July 10, 2001.

After an urging by fellow All-Star Alex Rodriguez, Ripken started at shortstop, which was his original position on the diamond 21 seasons ago. Rodriguez took over duties at third base to allow Ripken a final start at a position he played for his first 16 seasons.

Derek Jeter and Magglio Ordonez also connected for consecutive home runs as the AL won its fifth All-Star Game in a row. Suzuki, the most popular player in Seattle (if not all of baseball) at the time, singled and stole a base as the AL cut its all-time deficit to 40-31-1.

However, everything paled in comparison to Ripken's mighty feat.

At 40, Ripken unseated Stan Musial as the oldest player to homer in an All-Star Game. Ripken also became the first AL player to twice win the All-Star MVP trophy. His other came in 1991 when he also homered.

After stepping out of the batter's box and waving his helmet to acknowledge a standing ovation, Ripken hit Chan Ho Park's first pitch of the third inning over the left-field fence.

Tony Gwynn, who retired with Ripken following the 2001 season, applauded from the opposing dugout. Ripken, in his trademark and modest fashion, had to be coaxed out of the dugout by the sellout crowd of 47,364 for a curtain call.

Later, the game was stopped as every All-Star player joined commissioner Bud Selig in a small ceremony before the sixth inning to say goodbye to Ripken and Gwynn. The ceremony came near third base, and Ripken's No. 8 was on the bag.

It was a fitting farewell for Ripken. Many credit him for saving baseball after a strike wiped out the 1994 World Series, highlighted by him going on to break Lou Gehrig's consecutive games record.

Ripken's first All-Star Game came in 1983, when Johnny Bench and Carl Yastrzemski played for the last time.

Gwynn, added as an honorary member, did not get to hit. The eight-time NL batting champion from San Diego said he was more than content to follow the festivities from the dugout.

Freddy Garcia, one of a record eight Seattle players who appeared in the game, was the winning pitcher and teammate Kazuhiro Sasaki completed the AL's three-hitter and got the save. Park took the loss.

Ryan Klesko hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth for the NL's only run.

Sean Casey, the Reds' lone representative at the All-Star Game, struck out in his only plate appearance.

2001 Season in Review

2001 Miscellaneous

2001 Season Highlights

THE RITE: Approximately 13,000 seats were removed from Cinergy Field to allow for construction of Great American Ball Park, scheduled to open in 2003...capacity decreased from 52,953 to 40,007...the outfield walls are 8 feet high down the lines (164 feet long in LF, 162 feet in RF), then increase to 14 feet high in the alleys (88 feet in LCF, 60 feet in RCF)...the batter's eye is 40 feet high and 81 feet wide...home runs must clear the wall in all fields...the previous dimensions were 330 in LF/RF, 375 in LCF/RCF and 404 to CF...the artificial turf was replaced with Kentucky bluegrass, grown in Indiana...home plate was moved back 10 feet, decreasing the distance to the back wall from 59 feet to 49 feet...both bullpens are located behind the right field wall...to homer into the Ohio River, a batter would have to hit a ball approximately 1,200 feet over the wall in right-center field...at Great American Ball Park, the river will be about 615 feet from home plate.

90-LOSS SEASONS: The Reds suffered at least 90 losses for only the 13th time in 133 seasons and for only the third time since 1949 (1982, 1984):

month since they went 8-22 in July 1952...their 6 victories was the second-lowest May total in franchise history (5-19 in 1934)...the Reds were the only team in baseball to score fewer than 100 runs in May (96r)...on 5/1 were 15-10 and tied with the Cubs for the NL Central Division lead...went 5-22 the rest of the month and dropped

Randy Johnson fans a career-high 20 Reds on May 8 at Arizona

11.5g in the standings...finished May by losing 8 of their last 9g...from 5/9-5/26 allowed at least 1 home run in 16 consecutive games (22hr), breaking the club record of 13g established from 6/29-7/10, 1955...that 16-game homer record would be broken in June...was part of a stretch in which Reds pitchers allowed at least 1 homer in 22-23g from 5/9-6/3 (31hr)...in the 7-6 victory on 5/1 vs LA, Deion Sanders made his first Major League appearance since 9/4/97 vs Pit...he went 1,334 days and 534g between ML apps...in that 7-6 win Sanders started in LF, batted second and went 3-for-3 with a 3-run HR, sac bunt, stolen base and 2 runs scored...in the 11-inning, 4-3 loss on 5/8 at Ari, Diamondbacks starter Randy Johnson recorded a career-high 20 strikeouts...Reds batters struck out 21 times total...in a 4-3 loss vs Hou on 5/13, the Reds hosted ESPN Sunday Night Baseball for the first time since a 6-2 loss vs Atl on 6/2/96...from 5/22-5/24 Reds batters recorded 10 hits total in 5-3, 4-2 and 3-0 losses vs Cubs at Wrigley Field...during that series, the Reds and Cubs sat through 6 hours and 1 minute of rain delays...in a 3-0 loss at Chi on 5/24, Jon Lieber threw 79 pitches in a 1-hitter that snapped the Reds' National League record of 208 consecutive games without being shut out, dating back to the 1999 regular-season playoff game vs the Mets...was the third-longest consecutive scoring streak in history (1931-33 Yankees, 308g; 1978-79 Brewers, 212g)...Reds batters were 1-hit for the first time since John Smoltz' 3-0 win on

4/30/99 at Atl...Lieber's 1-hour, 48-minute shutout was the Reds' shortest 9-inning game since they beat the Phillies, 2-1, in 1:44 on 7/4/89 at Veterans Stadium...3 days later (5/27) the Reds were defeated, 2-0, by the Cardinals, their second shutout in 4g...in the 13-inning, 9-6 loss vs Cubs on 5/28, the teams established a National League record and tied the Major League record by using 6 first basemen in a game (Cin's Casey, Young, Selby, LaRue & Chi's Stairs, Zuleta)...the Reds used 4 first basemen to tie the Major League record for an extra-inning game, accomplished for the fourth time...Jason LaRue and Bill Selby made their ML debuts at first base...in that loss, Reds batters struck out 18 times.

The Reds lost 16g in July for the first time since they went 8-16 in 1991...finished the month with 4 straight victories as part of a season-high 7-game winning streak (7/27-8/3)...at 33-54 were in last place at the All-Star break for the first time since 1998 (39-50, -15.0g)...their 33 wins were the fewest at the break since the 1982 Reds began 33-53 (-19.0g) on the way to a team-record 101 losses (61-101)...their 11 wins at Cinergy Field was their lowest first-half victory total in the stadium's history (first full season, 1971)...on 7/2 the Reds signed RHP Jose Rijo to a Class A Dayton contract...from 7/8-7/13 did not score a run in 17 innings, their longest scoreless streak of the season...also would go 17 innings without scoring from 9/19-9/20...Cle's 7-0 victory on 7/12 at Cinergy Field was the first shutout in the Battle of Ohio series (22nd game)...in the 13-inning, 6-5 victory vs Cle on 7/14, Reds pitchers committed 3 errors in a game (Brower 2, Mercado 1) for the first time since Jose Rijo, Dwayne Henry and Norm Charlton each had an error in the 10-7 win on 5/8/92 at Cubs...in the 9-1 victory vs Det on 7/16, rookie LHP Lance Davis threw the Reds' first complete game of the season, in the 92nd game...the 91 games to begin the season without a CG broke the franchise record established in 2000, when RHP Pete Harnisch didn't throw the staff's first complete game until the 90th game (7/14/00 at Col, 9-2 win)...Davis' 5-hitter snapped the Reds' string of 93 consecutive games without a CG (last: Ron Villone, 9/29/00 at StL, 8-1 win)...was the first CG by a Reds rookie lefthander since Tom Browning completed 6g in 1985...in the seventh inning of the 11-7 loss at Fla on 7/22, Frankie Rodriguez became the fourth Reds pitcher to strike out 4 batters in an inning (Joe Nuxhall, Mario Soto, Tim Lincecum)...in the 10-5 win vs Fla on 7/27, Adam Dunn hit his first career homer (off Matt Clement)...on 7/27 and 7/28 vs Fla, the 51st and 52nd home games of the season, the Reds won consecutive games on a homestand for the first time all season.

Reds History

Reds History

Written by Greg Rhodes, author and baseball historian.

Immediately following the Civil War, baseball enjoyed a nation-wide boom and several amateur teams formed in Cincinnati, including the Cincinnati Base Ball Club (CBCB), the forerunner of today's Cincinnati Reds Baseball Club. The club, originally nicknamed the "Resolutes," was formed on July 23, 1866, but did not play a regular schedule of games until the next summer.

The club hired Harry Wright - a cricket player from New York - to oversee club operations, and Wright proved to be the right choice. Wright developed new strategies and practice regimes that were soon adopted by other clubs. He also was the first to advocate the knicker-style trousers for players, and his choice of team colors created the team nickname. In 1868, the club appeared in short pants with bright red socks, and quickly became known as the "Red Stockings."

Since 1871, baseball teams have always appeared in knicker-style uniforms, and the official Cincinnati nickname has always been some variation of "Reds."

But the most radical innovation the CBCB introduced was the all-professional team in 1869. By 1868, Cincinnati had become the top club west of the Alleghenies, but it could not compete with the established clubs on the East Coast. The club needed to find better players, and club President Aaron Champion argued for an all-salaried nine. While other clubs, especially in New York and Washington, had paid some players under the table, the Red Stockings were the first to openly declare themselves a professional "nine." (The term "nine" was often used because in fact there were just nine players on a team.

Teams occasionally carried one substitute, but he would play only in an emergency.) Harry Wright recruited several excellent players from the the East, including his younger brother, George - the best player in the country. Both George and Harry Wright were ultimately elected to the Hall of Fame.

In 1869, the Cincinnati Base Ball Club played the entire season with all of its players under contract. The total salary outlay was approximately $11,000, with the salary of star shortstop George Wright nearly $2,000. Thus began the era of professional baseball - and of professional team sports.

Many baseball people and the sporting press thought the decision to employ players would backfire. They did not think the public would accept the idea of paying men to play a game. But the Red Stockings played at such a high level of skill and conducted themselves in such a "gentlemanly" fashion on and off the field - inspired in part by an abstinence pledge drafted by Champion and supported by the virtuous Wright - that by the end of the '69 season, there was no doubt that the professional game would prevail.

The 1869 Red Stockings made history not only as the first professional club, but they also ran off the longest winning streak in baseball history. Although there was no league yet established, there were some 15 teams in the upper tier of clubs. The Red Stockings defeated all of these teams - many of them twice - and they also walloped a number of lesser clubs. Their final official record was 57-0. (The Red Stockings played and won many more games than this, but these games would be considered exhibition games today. Harry Wright counted only those games against other sanctioned clubs as official. Thus, some record books list a much higher number of games won by the Red Stockings.) The club retained all of its players for 1870, and the club ran its unbeaten streak to 81 games before it was defeated by the Brooklyn Atlantics, 8-7 in 11 innings, before 10,000 spectators in New York.

The team finished the 1870 season with a record of 68-6, but the club lost money and the officers elected to disband the professional nine. Although the first professional league formed in 1871 - the direct result of the success of the Red Stockings - Cincinnati was not part of this new league.

Harry Wright was captain of the Red Stockings in 1869.

Baseball's first team comprised entirely of paid players was the 1869 Cincinnati Red Stockings.

REDS 1876-1899

The Cincinnati club, under new management, rejoined the professional ranks in 1876 when it became a charter member of the new eight-team National League. The Reds, along with the Chicago Cubs, are the only charter members of the National League still playing in the NL.

These new Reds had none of the magic of the pioneering Red Stockings. The best finish they could muster in their first five seasons was second in 1878. During these first years in the National League, the Reds' stars were outfielder Charlie Jones and pitcher Will White, who still holds the Major League record for most starts in one season - 75.

White set the club record for most wins in the same season (1879) with 43. This was the era of underhanded pitching, and White pitched nearly every game.

Despite the Reds' celebrated past as founders of professional baseball, the National League kicked Cincinnati out after the 1880 season. The reason: the club sold beer and rented its grounds to amateur teams on Sundays, both practices in violation of league rules.

In 1882, after one season on the sidelines, the Reds became one of the founding members of the American Association, the first league to successfully challenge the established National League. Although the Association was not related to the American League (which formed in 1901), the Association is considered a second major league and its records are official in the eyes of Major League Baseball. The Reds featured pitcher White and a young second baseman named Bid McPhee. McPhee led the Reds with his brilliant defensive play and solid offense and holds several 19th century records. He played 18 consecutive seasons with the Reds, a mark later broken by Dave Concepcion.

The Reds won the Association pennant in 1882, and split a brief two-game post-season exhibition series with Chicago, winners of the National League. Some consider this the first "World Series," in that it was the first time winners of two leagues met in post-season play.

Prior to the 1884 season, the Reds faced a ballpark crisis. A new and short-lived league, the Player's League, formed in the offseason, and the Cincinnati entry grabbed the lease on the Reds' ballpark, which was located on Spring Grove Avenue, near Spring Grove Cemetery. The Reds scrambled to find a new location, and wound up in an empty brickyard at the corner of Findlay Street and Western Avenue - where they would remain for the next 86 years. In just three months, the club erected a new wooden grandstand, and smoothed out a playing field, except for one spot. There was a steep incline deep in the outfield that seldom came into play and the club left it as it was. In the 20th century, as the bats became more lively and balls soared deep into the outfield, this incline, now called the "terrace," became a well-known Crosley Field landmark.

The Reds rejoined the National League in 1890, and began three decades of frustration. Over the next 29 years, the Reds never finished higher than third. Typically, interest in the Reds peaked on Opening Day. Business manager Frank Bancroft (1892-1920) took full advantage of the tradition of the Reds opening at home, and he promoted the event with parades and bands - a tradition which eventually spawned the Findlay Market parade and Cincinnati's annual Opening Day "holiday."

1900-1920

In the first decade of the 20th century, the Reds featured some outstanding players, including pitcher Noodles Hahn, outfielder Cy Seymour and National League stolen base champion Bob Bescher. But the Reds usually finished in the lower half of the eight-team league and the most interesting developments occurred off the field. Early in the morning of May 28, 1900, the main grandstand of League Park, the Reds' home field at Findlay and Western, burned. The club moved home plate where the right-field corner was, built temporary stands and finished the season. The charred ruins of the old stands remained in deep left field until 1902 when a fabulous new iron and concrete grandstand opened (and home plate was moved back to its "correct" location). The grandstand, nicknamed the "Palace of the Fans," was unique; a blend of Roman and Greek styling that had never been used before in a grandstand, and has never been seen since.

The 3,000-seat grandstand featured 19 "fashion boxes" along the front railing that could hold 15 or more well-heeled fans. Beneath the grandstand, at field level, was standing room for 640 more spectators in a rowdy section known as "Rooter's Row." On Opening Day, 1902, some 10,000 spectators crowded into the park and watched the Reds lose to the Chicago Cubs, 6-1.

During the 1902 season, owner John T. Brush, an Indianapolis businessman who had owned the Reds for over a decade, sold the club for $150,000 to a local group headed by city official Garry Hermann. Hermann's high-profile job as manager of the water works, his magnetic personality and his fondness for a big party, made him a well-known and well-liked character. But the fun-loving Hermann proved to be a wise and thoughtful steward of the club. His fellow owners voted him to a leadership role in the National League, and he chaired baseball's governing body, the National Commission, for 16 years.

Christy Mathewson

August "Garry" Hermann was the Reds' president from 1902-1927.

After the 1911 season, Hermann determined that the Palace of the Fans was too small for the growing interest in baseball. The stands were demolished and all new stands constructed in time for the 1912 opener. This was an era of new ballparks - Forbes Field, Comiskey Park, Ebbets Field and Wrigley Field all opened about the same time. Most were named after the club's owner, but Hermann declined the honor, opting for "Redland Field," a nickname that had often been applied to the old park. The new brick stands, with the bleachers beyond the right-field fence, and a steep terrace in left field, seated 20,000 spectators. When Powel Crosley bought the Reds in 1934, he renamed the park "Crosley Field."

The new ballpark did not inspire the Reds; the team finished fourth in 1912 and sunk all the way to last in 1914. But in 1916, Hermann found a new manager who helped turn the Reds around - Hall of Fame pitcher Christy Mathewson. Mathewson's Reds climbed to third by 1918, but when Mathewson was injured in World War I, the Reds hired Pat Moran. Moran added several new players to a lineup that already included Hall of Famer Edd Roush and Heinie Groh, and the Reds beat the favored Giants to win the 1919 pennant. Their winning percentage was .686 - the equivalent of 111 wins in a 162-game schedule - the best in club history.

Despite their regular-season success, the Reds were underdogs to the Chicago White Sox, led by "Shoeless" Joe Jackson. But on the eve of the Series, the betting odds suddenly shifted in favor of the Reds. Rumors swirled around the opening game in Cincinnati that a fix was in. But the games were played without obvious incident, or so it seemed.

The Reds beat the White Sox, but a year later eight Chicago players admitted to participating in a plot to fix the Series. Several Reds, including Edd Roush, claimed that they never saw any suspicious behavior; in Roush's words, "One thing that's always overlooked in this whole mess is that we could have beaten them no matter what the circumstances. The 1919 Cincinnati Reds were better!"

REDS 1920s

The Reds featured two Hall of Famers in their lineup for much of the 1920s, centerfielder Edd Roush and pitcher Eppa Rixey. The Reds finished second in 1922, 1923 and 1926, but could not repeat the success of 1919. Two tragedies marred the 1924 season. Manager Pat Moran died suddenly from liver failure during spring training, and the popular captain and first baseman of the Reds, Jake Daubert, passed away at the close of the season. Daubert had been beamed in May and suffered from insomnia. His condition weakened the rest of the season. He died in October after an emergency appendectomy.

As the 1920s drew to a close, owner Garry Herrmann put the club up for sale. Sidney Weil, a Cincinnati businessman, eventually bought control of the club, but he lost much of his money in the stock market crash of 1929. Strapped by the lack of cash, Weil's Reds soon landed in the cellar.

REDS 1930s

The 1930s began with the Reds in last place, but concluded with the team winning the National League pennant. Although Weil was unable to invest much in the club, he did make two outstanding trades, bringing future Hall of Famer Ernie Lombardi and pitcher Paul Derringer to the Reds in the early 1930s. Eventually, Weil was forced to sell the club, and broadcasting magnate Powel Crosley bought control in 1934. One of the first moves the entrepreneurial Crosley made was to put his name on the ballpark. "Redland Field" became "Crosley Field" on April 16, 1934.

Crosley joined forces with his energetic and visionary General Manager Larry McPhail to rescue the Reds. In the process they transformed baseball. In 1935, McPhail and Crosley persuaded the commissioner and other owners to allow the Reds to stage seven night games. The Reds had averaged only 2,700 fans a game in 1934, and McPhail thought night baseball would provide desperately needed revenue. The first game was held on May 24, 1935, with 20,422 fans marveling at the 632 bright lights on eight tall towers. The Reds beat the Phillies, 2-1. The players found the illumination satisfactory, although there were some dark shadows in the outfield. But McPhail's experiment worked - the Reds averaged 18,000 fans in their seven night games, while averaging just 4,600 in their day games.

Bill McKechnie

Two other dramatic events highlighted the 1930s. In January 1937, the worst flood in Cincinnati history inundated Crosley Field when water flowed over the outfield walls. In the most famous stunt in Reds history, pitchers Gene Schott and Lee Grissom, rowed a boat down Western Avenue and over the wall. In 1938, Johnny Vander Meer set a Major League record when he pitched consecutive no-hitters; the second one coming against Brooklyn in the first night game ever played at Ebbets Field.

In 1938, the Reds hired Bill McKechnie to be their new manager. McKechnie's Reds made a dramatic leap in the standings from eighth to fourth, and led by the pitching of Derringer and Bucky Walters, and the hitting of Lombardi, Frank McCormick and Ival Goodman, the Reds won their first pennant in 20 years in 1939. The clinching game came against the second-place Cardinals on September 28, a thrilling 5-3 victory that ranks among the most dramatic games ever played at Crosley Field. But the Reds collapsed in the Series, swept by the powerful Yankees. Game Four in Cincinnati featured a 10th-inning collision at home plate between the Yanks Charlie Keller and Lombardi. "Lom" was knocked unconscious and lay prone at the plate while Joe DiMaggio scored the go-ahead run. Sportswriters reported on Lombardi's "snooze," an image that haunted the big catcher until his death.

REDS 1940s

The Reds won 100 games in 1940, then a franchise record, and won the pennant by 12 games over the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers. The pennant race was marred by the shocking suicide by backup catcher Willard Hershberger on August 3 in a Boston hotel. Hershberger remains the only player in Major League history to commit suicide during a season.

The World Series matched the pitching and defense of the Reds against the power of the Detroit Tigers. But the Reds chances looked dim when injuries put Lombardi and second baseman Lonnie Frey on the bench. But Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer pitched four complete-game victories, and 40-year-old coach Jimmy Wilson hit .353 subbing for Lombardi. Derringer won the deciding seventh game at Crosley Field, the only time in club history the Reds have won a World Championship at home. Frank McCormick was named National League MVP, following Lombardi (1938) and Walters (1939). The Reds became the first team to have three different players win the MVP in consecutive years.

The 1941 Reds finished third and the club remained competitive until 1944 when the impact of aging players and roster losses due to World War II enlistments took their toll. Many teams scrambled to find promising players, and the Reds even recruited a high-school pitcher, 15-year-old Joe Nuxhall. The Hamilton, Ohio, native made baseball history as the youngest player to appear in a big-league game on June 10, 1944. He pitched two-thirds of an inning against St. Louis, giving up five runs on two hits and five walks. It was Nuxhall's only appearance in 1944, but he returned to the Reds in 1952 and wound up with 130 wins, ninth on the Reds all-time list.

Fifteen-year-old Joe Nuxhall with Reds' Manager Bill McKechnie.

Willard Hershberger

There were no Cincinnati pennants won in the 1950s - in fact the team had only two winning seasons - but many who remember Crosley Field consider the '50s to be the ballpark's golden era. By the end of the decade, parking nightmares and the demolition of the surrounding neighborhood had stolen much of Crosley's charm, but the '50s hearken memories of afternoons at the ballpark, the Sun Deck bleachers and the "Goat Run" - the temporary seats installed in front of the right-field fence.

The 1950s began with the Reds mired in the second division and their only highlight - the emergence of a young first baseman named Ted Kluszewski. In 1954, "Klu" nearly won the triple crown, leading the league in home runs, RBIs, and finishing fifth in batting average. Klu, who had the biceps of an ex-football player (which he was), began cutting off the sleeves of his jersey. The club eventually adopted the look, introducing a new sleeveless vest top in 1956. The Reds returned to this style in the 1990s.

The club acknowledged the emergence of the African-American ballplayer with the appearance of Chuck Harmon in 1954, seven years after Jackie Robinson had integrated the Major Leagues. The club slowly added other black players, and in 1956, Frank Robinson became the Reds' first black superstar (and its first Rookie of the Year). Robinson quickly established himself as a future Hall of Famer with his consistent offense - he averaged 32 home runs and 101 RBI in his 10 seasons with the Reds. He led an offensive explosion in 1956 when the club tied the Major League home run record with 221. The Reds challenged for the NL pennant until the last week of the season, finishing third - their best finish since 1944. Manager Birdie Tebbetts deserved much of the credit for turning the club around, but even Tebbetts could not overcome the weak pitching and by 1959 Fred Hutchinson was the new skipper.

The 1950s are also remembered for the change in the club nickname, the result of the anti-Soviet Union hysteria that equated anything red with the "Reds" of the communist world. The team officially became the "Redlegs" for several seasons but returned to the traditional name by the end of the decade.

Ted Kluszewski

Powel Crosley

The 1960s began with the sad news that long-time owner Powel Crosley had died of a heart attack. New owner Bill DeWitt took over the club in 1961 and along with Manager Fred Hutchinson, made several moves which all proved successful. The result was a surprise pennant, the "Ragamuffin Reds" of 1961. Led by Frank Robinson, Vada Pinson and the pitching of Joey Jay and Bob Purkey, the Reds beat out the Los Angeles Dodgers for the pennant, but then lost to the Roger Maris-Mickey Mantle led Yankees, four games to one.

The Reds suffered two significant set backs in the mid-60s with the loss in 1964 of the 45-year-old Hutchinson to cancer, and the ill-fated Frank Robinson trade in 1965. But the Reds racked up a decade-long winning percentage of .537, the best in club history to that point. The club nearly won the pennant in 1964, being eliminated on the last day of the season, and challenged for the pennant in 1965 and 1969. Much of the success could be attributed to the remarkable string of new talent, led by Rookies of the Year Pete Rose (1963), Tommy Helms (1966) and Johnny Bench (1968). Lee May, Tony Perez and Jim Maloney also debuted in the 1960s. Maloney threw three no-hitters in the 1960s and became the Reds' all-time strikeout leader.

In the mid-60s, debate intensified over a new Reds ballpark. For the first time in club history, a Reds ballpark would be built with public funding - a trend rapidly sweeping the sports world. DeWitt favored a suburban location and a baseball-only field, but when the Cincinnati Bengals were awarded a National League Football franchise in 1966, civic leaders wanted a multi-purpose stadium on the riverfront. DeWitt eventually sold the club rather than approve the lease for Riverfront Stadium. His successors, led by Cincinnati Enquirer publisher Frank Dale, signed a 40-year lease and in 1967 hired Bob Howsam to be the new president and general manager. The stage was set for the emergence of the Big Red Machine, and the greatest decade in Reds history.

REDS 1970's

The new decade opened with a farewell to Crosley Field on June 24, 1970, (and a 5-4 Reds victory) and the dedication of Riverfront Stadium on June 30

(an 8-2 loss to the Braves). Two weeks later, in the first of many memorable moments at Riverfront, Pete Rose bowled over Cleveland catcher Ray Fosse to score the winning run in the 12th inning of the All-Star Game.

Bob Howsam made several key personnel moves in the 1970s to bolster the foundation of Rose, Bench and Perez that DeWitt left him. None was more important than the hiring of the then-unknown George "Sparky" Anderson to manage the team. Anderson led the Reds to a Western Division crown (the National League had been divided into East and West divisions in 1969), and a pennant in 1970, but the Reds lost the World Series to Brooks Robinson and the Baltimore Orioles.

The Reds returned to post-season play in 1972, buoyed in part by the epic trade that brought Joe Morgan, Jack Billingham, Denis Menke and Cesar Geronimo to Cincinnati and the emergence of Dave Concepcion as the starting shortstop. In Game 5 of the NLCS against Pittsburgh at Riverfront, Bench's stunning ninth-inning home run tied the game, and the Reds won the pennant moments later when George Foster scored on a wild pitch. The Reds lost a taut seven-game World Series to the Oakland A's.

In 1973, the favored Reds lost to the Mets in a bitter playoff struggle that featured a brawl between Rose and the Mets' Bud Harrelson in Game 3, and a riot at Shea Stadium at the conclusion of Game 5. Although the Reds won 98 games in 1974, they lost the division crown to the Dodgers and many wondered if the Big Red Machine would ever win a World Series.

After a slow start in 1975, Anderson made a series of brilliant lineup moves that created the fabled Big Red Machine starting lineup. He moved Rose from the outfield to third base, allowing George Foster to start in left field. He made Ken Griffey his starting right fielder and moved him to the number two spot in the lineup, pushing Morgan to third. The result was what many have called the greatest starting eight in the history of the game - Rose, Griffey, Morgan, Bench, Perez, Foster, Concepcion and Geronimo. The revamped Reds set a franchise record with 108 wins in 1975. They defeated the Red Sox in one of the best World Series of all time. Game 6 featured the memorable home run by Carlton Fisk in the 12th inning; in Game 7, the Reds rallied from a 3-0 deficit on a two-run homer by Perez and a ninth-inning, game-winning single by Morgan.

In 1976, the Reds again topped the century mark in wins with 102, and swept through the post-season, winning seven straight games, including a dramatic ninth-inning, come-from-behind victory over the Phillies in the NLCS, and a four-game sweep of the Yankees. The 1976 Reds led the Major Leagues in ten offensive, defensive and pitching categories (runs scored, doubles, triples, home runs, batting average, slugging average, stolen bases, fewest errors, fielding percentage and saves), a domination that has never been matched.

The Big Red Machine also dominated the awards voting in the 1970s—the starting eight won six MVP awards, 26 Gold Gloves, and earned 63 All-Star selections. In addition, the team set attendance records, topping the two-million mark for the first time in 1973, and establishing the single-season mark of 2,630,000 in 1976.

But the Big Red Machine would never win another title. A series of unpopular moves gutted the team. Perez was traded in 1977; Anderson was fired after the 1978 season and Rose was let go as a free agent. Although the Reds acquired Tom Seaver in 1977, and won a division crown under new Manager John McNamara in 1979, the Big Red Machine era was over. But Howsam, Anderson and the “Great Eight” left a legacy that will never be forgotten, and - in the era of high-priced free agency - may never be equaled.

REDS 1980's

The Reds went on a roller-coaster ride in the 1980s, both on and off the field. They had the best record in baseball in 1981, but did not appear in the post-season because of an odd split-season format necessitated by a mid-year strike. The Reds finished second in both halves of the season, and were thus ineligible for post-season play. The Reds sunk to last in 1982, losing over 100 games (101) for the first time in club history. The unpopular Dick Wagner, who had replaced Howsam in 1978, was fired and Howsam returned to run the club. He restored fan enthusiasm when he brought Pete Rose back to Cincinnati in 1984 as player/manager and signed the Reds' first significant free agent, Dave Parker.

In late 1984, Marge Schott purchased the Reds and quickly established herself as the club's number one booster. She became a very visible and popular owner, signing hundreds of autographs at home games from her seat behind the Reds' dugout.

Rose provided a moment for the ages at Riverfront Stadium in 1985 when he stroked “4,192”, breaking Ty Cobb's Major League record. Rose also proved to be an inspired choice for manager. He developed several young players, including Barry Larkin, Eric Davis and Paul O'Neill, and led the Reds to four consecutive second-place division finishes. One of his young pitchers, Tom Browning, produced one memorable night at Riverfront on September 16, 1988, when he pitched the first perfect game in Reds history.

But Rose hit rock-bottom in the summer of 1989 when Major League Baseball investigated him for gambling on baseball. The commissioner's office and Rose eventually negotiated a settlement for a lifetime ban from the sport, with a provision for reinstatement after one year (although no finding was made with regard to the gambling charges).

REDS 1990's

The decade began with one of the most remarkable seasons in Reds history. New Manager Lou Piniella inherited Rose's young talent and General Manager Bob Quinn made several successful trades, adding Randy Myers, Hal Morris and Billy Hatcher. The Reds broke out of the gate with nine straight wins and never lost the lead in the NL West, making them the first club to go wire-to-wire in a 162-game season. Jose Rijo, Tom Browning and Jack Armstrong led the starters; Randy Myers combined with Rob Dibble and Norm Charlton to form the “Nasty Boys,” baseball's most dominating bullpen. Eric Davis, Chris Sabo, Paul O'Neill and Barry Larkin led the offense. After edging the Pirates in a tense six-game NLCS, highlighted by the tremendous outfield defense of Cincinnati, the Reds shocked baseball by sweeping the favored Oakland A's. Led by Jose Rijo's two wins - he was named Series MVP - and the hitting of Sabo and Hatcher, the Reds pulled off one of the biggest upsets in World Series history.

But Piniella was unable to win another title and he was replaced in 1993 by the popular Tony Perez. But after the Reds stumbled out of the gate, the new general manager, Jim Bowden, announced Perez's firing after just 44 games, and the hiring of Davey Johnson. It was a rough baptism for the young Bowden, but he quickly established himself as one of the most successful GMs in baseball. In an era of booming payrolls, the small-market Reds found it difficult to compete with their better-financed brethren. Cost-cutting moves in the 1980s had left the Reds' farm system depleted, and so Bowden turned to free agents and trades to build the team. In 1994, the Reds were in first place when the owners ended the season early in a labor dispute, and canceled the post-season.

In 1995, the National League was divided into three divisions, and the Reds won the new NL Central. The Reds swept the Dodgers in the first round of the playoffs, but were swept by the Braves in the NLCS. Shortstop Barry Larkin was named the league's MVP that season, after batting .319 with 15 homers and 51 stolen bases.

Sean Casey

In 1996, Larkin surpassed his 1995 performance as he became the first shortstop in Major League history to hit 30 or more homers and steal 30 or more bases in a single season.

After surpassing the 30 stolen-base mark, Barry made history on September 22 vs. St. Louis, when he blasted his 30th homer of the season in the 5th inning.

In the late 1990s the Reds began to focus on developing younger players, and suffered through a rebuilding period. Veteran Jack McKeon was hired to guide these new-look Reds. Bowden added Sean Casey, Dmitri Young, Danny Graves, Denny Neagle, Michael Tucker, Mike Cameron and Greg Vaughn in trades and the farm system produced Pokey Reese, Aaron Boone, Brett Tomko and Scott Williamson. With the addition of free agents Pete Harnisch and Steve Parris, the Reds had assembled a team that surprised the experts by winning 96 games and competing for the Central Division title. Although the Reds lost to the Mets in a one-game playoff for a post-season berth, the young talent on the team and in the farm system has the club well-positioned for the Reds' third century of baseball.

2000 and Beyond

For Reds fans, the new century dawned on February 10, 2000, when the Reds announced the signing of Ken Griffey Jr., one of the most sought-after free agents in baseball history, to a nine-year contract. The trade for the Cincinnati native - who had frolicked on the riverfront turf as a youngster with his father, Ken Sr. - generated enormous enthusiasm on the part of Reds fans. Griffey's arrival helped stir talk of a pennant in 2000, and although Griffey had a fine year, leading the team in home runs (40) and RBI (118), the Reds failed to catch St. Louis and finished second in the NL Central. Their 85 wins ranked sixth out of the NL's 16 clubs.

Ken Griffey Jr.

Three days after the conclusion of the 2000 season, on October 4, groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Great American Ball Park took place beyond the center-field wall of Cinergy Field. Commissioner Bud Selig was among those in attendance. The massive construction project brought about several changes for Cinergy Field, including the removal of thousands of outfield seats, the opening of the seating "bowl" in center field, a new outfield wall configuration and the installation of a natural grass field, the first in Cincinnati since the days of Crosley Field. As the framework of the new ballpark rises beyond the center-field wall, the present and future of the Reds will be on display. Cinergy Field (above) lost some 14,000 seats in the fall of 2000, as portions of left and center field were removed in preparation for the construction of Great American Ball Park.

Great American Ball Park will be ready for occupancy on Opening Day 2003. The ballpark will fit in between what is now Cinergy Field and the Firstar Center, with home plate facing south east towards the Ohio River.

In July of 2001, the Reds announced the formation of an internal community relations department and The Cincinnati Reds Community Fund, a nonprofit, 501 (c)(3) organization. The Cincinnati Reds Community Fund was designed for the sole purpose of extending special care and incentives through unique and exclusive programs to those citizens and organizations less fortunate within the Greater Cincinnati area. The Fund will directly support those efforts focusing on, but not limited to, youth sports, education and literacy, health and physical fitness awareness, and social and community service programs. Led by Reds' Chief Operating Officer, John Allen, the Fund's initial Board of Directors included Michael Ringer, Reds' director of communications and community relations, Lorrie Platt, Reds' manager of community relations, Anthony Ward, Reds' controller, Rick Stowe, Reds' clubhouse and equipment manager, Dr. Timothy Kremchek, Reds' medical director, Amin Akbar, Tamara Harkavy, Robert Matteucci, James McGraw Jr., Sharon Montgomery, Kitty Strauss and Owen Wrasman.

In 2002, the Reds will celebrate their final season at Riverfront Stadium/Cinergy Field. Built in 1970, the all-purpose stadium has been home to both the Reds and the NFL's Cincinnati Bengals. With the opening of Great American Ball Park less than a year away, the club will move into its new corporate offices in the fall, and Riverfront Stadium/Cinergy Field will meet its demise in December of 2002 as plans are being made for a complete implosion of the facility.

Riverfront Stadium takes shape in the fall of 1969.

City of Cincinnati

The Ohio River Valley, where Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky are situated, has long been known as a land of special promise. For centuries, various American Indian tribes revered the lush valley where several smaller rivers join the Ohio River to be sacred hunting grounds. Indians from throughout the Midwest would travel to what is now Cincinnati to hunt the huge herds of bison and other game that frequented the area.

Word soon spread about this "promised land" as European immigrants began to travel west during the last half of the 18th century. Part of the Northwest Territory ceded to the United States in 1783 by England, the area where Cincinnati now exists was considered among the most fertile land on the continent.

As the only spot along the Ohio River where the steep hills did not come to the river's banks, the area that would become Cincinnati was the natural setting for a great city.

On December 28, 1788, a group of hearty pioneers beached their riverboats directly across the Ohio River from the mouth of Kentucky's Licking River, and Cincinnati was born.

After the Indian threat was ended through fierce fighting in the mid-1790s, Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky grew rapidly. Its dense forests and fertile river valley soil provided area settlers with ample natural resources. The superior river transportation network created by the convergence of the Ohio, Licking and Great Miami rivers also allowed local surpluses to be shipped to New Orleans for nationwide distribution.

Cincinnati's agricultural riches quickly turned this booming and boisterous river town into the nation's top hog market, earning the city the nickname "Porkopolis" by 1820. A wave of German immigrants also made Cincinnati equally famous for its tasty beer and German heritage, as it became the nation's top beer producing (and consuming) city.

During the riverboat heydays of the 19th century, Cincinnati was among the nation's largest and busiest inland water ports. A major stop for commercial and pleasure vessels traveling down the Ohio to the Mississippi River and New Orleans, Cincinnati's big-city sophistication rivaled that of almost any other city. Its sophistication and growth was so renowned that shortly after the Civil War, the New York Times declared Cincinnati to possess the most metropolitan atmosphere of any city outside New York.

So rapid was the growth of Cincinnati that by 1860, it was the sixth-largest U.S. city and the unquestioned manufacturing capital of the nation. When New York Tribune editor Horace Greeley wrote his famous lines in 1850, "Go West young man, and grow up with the country," he was talking about the Midwest and in particular, Cincinnati. Greeley also predicted that, "within 50 years, Cincinnati will become the greatest city on earth."

Such fame, fortune and location prompted many influential people to advocate relocating the U.S. capital to Cincinnati as early as 1830. The movement culminated in 1870 with an actual convention in Cincinnati on moving the nation's capital, where nothing was accomplished and the movement died.

When the riverboat era faded into the railroad age in the late 19th century, Cincinnati also relinquished its title as the center of westward migration and growth. Although it remained a prosperous city, gone forever was Cincinnati's dream of becoming the world's greatest metropolis as giants such as Chicago and St. Louis mushroomed on the western frontier.

As other cities were expanding in the pioneer spirit Cincinnati long discarded, the city matured. The "Queen City of the West" (a title made popular by poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in 1854) embraced its dominant German culture by creating large annual cultural festivals and erecting nationally famous cultural institutions like Music Hall, Cincinnati Art Museum and the Cincinnati Art Academy in the late 1800s.

Cincinnati had slipped from sixth to ninth place in population by 1900, but it remained one of the nation's most important cities. A world manufacturing leader in numerous industries such as printing materials, shoes, leather goods, machine tools and soap, Greater Cincinnati's labor force paid one-sixth of the first national tax bill when federal income tax began in 1916.

The city gained the world's spotlight once again in the early 1930s when Cincinnati had the distinction of opening the world's largest municipal airport (Lunken Airport) and train terminal (Union Terminal). With its manufacturing clout in place, Cincinnati played a key role in the World War II effort by producing fighter plane engines and other critical materials.

Today, Greater Cincinnati finds itself a thriving, mid-sized city that continues to be a leader in many business and cultural affairs. Cincinnati is among the country's fastest growing cities, and it is attracting world attention with its rapidly expanding airport and unusually strong foreign export market.

Always a city with tremendous community pride, Cincinnati grandly observed its 200th birthday in 1988 with a year-long celebration that saw citizens volunteer more than one million hours and $69 million. As part of the celebration, an expansive city park was dedicated at the spot where the city founders landed.

In 2000, the city went "hog wild" with its display of fiberglass pigs. Described as the "Big Pig Gig," hundreds of individual and corporate sponsors anteed up to display pigs of all sizes, shapes and distinctions. The event, which raised money for charity, was a huge success and a lot of fun.

Reds Uniforms

History of the Reds' uniform, courtesy of Mark Okkonen.

The Reds began the 1900 season with the oldest tradition in professional baseball, dating back to 1869. Their uniforms were basically a continuation of the 1890s, white at home, and dark, musty blue on the road. The caps were the standard close-fitting round style with a short bill. Red piping was used on the seams leading up to the red top button and around the base of the crown. A red "C" was also added to the front of the cap around 1900.

The home uniform in the first decade of the 1900s was always white and displayed either "CINCINNATI" or variations of a capital "C" on the left breast - a precursor of the standard emblem of future decades.

On the road, the city name "CINCINNATI" was continued on the chest in red capital letters on the gray or blue uniforms. By 1908, the standard block letters were replaced by a fancier style, and the cap was a solid red with white piping and no "C." This cap was also worn at home along with a solid red collar. In 1909, the darker blue road uniform returned, but instead of "CINCINNATI," a large fancy-style red "C" was positioned on the left breast as well as a smaller "C" on the sleeves and on the cap - a sort of "reverse" image of the previous white home uniform.

After 1910, several notable new trends in uniform design had become fashionable - the standard shirt collar was replaced by a short stand-up "cadet" style and subsequently by a tapered collar extension or no collar at all. Stirrup-type outer stockings were used in place of the one-piece color stockings - certainly a practical improvement in terms of daily laundering requirements.

Pin-striped fabrics in various widths and color combinations became common. Team nicknames were being accepted as "official" by the clubs and began to appear on the uniform jerseys. The very first version of the now-famous team logo made its appearance in 1911; the name "REDS" inside an ornate, scalloped "wishbone-style" capital "C." Red striping was also introduced around the button lapel and along the edge of the "cadet" style collar. A smaller capital "C" was placed on the sleeve and the home cap was solid red. By 1913, the "cadet" collar was modified and the C-REDS logo was also included on the left breast of the darker road suits. This combination of red-on-blue has to be one of the homeliest outfits ever worn by a baseball team.

Within a few years, good taste must have prevailed because the road uniforms reverted to a more conventional gray version of the home whites. Those dark blue road uniforms never again appeared on a Red player. By the end of the decade, the Reds logo had been established as a standard design and remained basically unaltered through the entire decade of the 20s. About the only features that changed at all during this long run of uniform design were to be the alternate use of pin-striped fabrics, evolutionary modification to the collar shape and trim and the return to a dark solid cap in the late 20s.

The team's first World Championship in 1919 (tainted though it was by the infamous "Black Sox" scandal) must have convinced club management that they had a "winning" year. The uniforms for most Major League teams during the "roaring 20s" were, likewise, generally plain and conservative. Oddly enough, it took a stock market crash and the onset of a prolonged depression to trigger a new flurry of ideas and colorful innovations in baseball uniforms.

By 1930, the Reds, like most of the other clubs, were breaking out of the rut of repetitive, plain uniforms. Pinstripes were "out," and white or gray cap crowns with a solid red bill were "in." The name "CINCINNATI" was restored to the gray road jerseys in red capital letters with a thin navy outline piping.

By the mid-30s, combinations of blue and white stripes were added to the solid red of the stockings, and the piping trim in the uniform was embellished by multiple beads and combinations of red and navy blue. In 1935, "REDS" was added to the sleeves of the road jersey and marked one of the very few occasions when the full team name (city plus nickname) was displayed on any Major League uniform.

By 1936, the predominance of the color red on the uniform trimmings had given way to equal billing for navy blue. The cap bill, the undersweaters, the socks, and even the C-REDS logo incorporated navy. The overall appearance was brighter, in keeping with the multi-color trimmings of many of the other club uniforms. This inclusion of navy blue was to remain an integral part of the color scheme for the next 20 years.

Cincinnati introduced night baseball to the world in 1935. The following season, they experimented with a radically different uniform design referred to as the "Palm Beach" uniforms. All piping trim was removed and the C-REDS emblem was replaced by a REDS in script lettering on the left breast of the jersey. They wore this uniform only occasionally in 1936 and 1937 and, for some night games, they even included solid red trousers.

This orgy of new graphics and extra color trimmings peaked out by 1938. The "CINCINNATI" on the road grays was still done in fancy-style block letters, but the socks were no longer multi-striped and the piping trim was somewhat toned down. The white or gray cap crown was replaced by solid navy with a red bill and a red "wishbone C."

For the 1939 season, austerity made a dramatic comeback on the Reds uniforms. All piping was eliminated, the socks were a plain half-red, half-navy combination and "CINCINNATI" on the road grays was restored to plain block capital letters - all red with no outline trim.

The navy blue background and white trim were retained on the C-REDS emblem on the home whites and remained constant through the mid-50s.

Could the superstition of once again not wanting to alter a "winner" be the reason why this basic uniform motif remained unchanged for the next 16 years? A second and third pennant in 1939-40, plus a "bona fide" World Series Championship in '40, would lend credence to this supposition. This long run of stable, conservative uniforms climaxed in the early 50s. The navy blue on the socks and sweaters was gone and the combination red and navy cap was replaced by your basic solid navy cap. The pendulum of design was ready to wing back to something more adventurous.

The anti-communist hysteria of the McCarthy era contributed to what is, in retrospect, an embarrassingly silly decision on the part of the Cincinnati Baseball Club.

After nearly 80 years of being identified as the Reds or Red Stockings - a fact which had absolutely no political or international overtones, and is as purely and innocently American as hotdogs and Crackerjacks - it was determined that the name REDS was detrimental to the organization and to baseball.

To their credit, a thread of tradition was retained by compromising on a harmless corruption of the team nickname, henceforth, they were to be called the REDLEGS.

In cadence with this new image, the team uniforms for 1956 underwent the most drastic overhaul in nearly 20 years. Navy blue was abandoned entirely as red became the sole color of the uniform trim (another plus for the salvation of long tradition). The name REDS was no longer displayed on the home uniforms after 45 years.

The most novel feature (not a first - the Cubs were the originals in 1940) was the sleeveless vest jersey. The stockings were still red, but with narrow white stripes. The caps were solid red with a white "wishbone C" and even the belts were red. The undershirt sleeves were solid red (when not cut off at the shoulder a la Ted Kluszewski). The gray road uniforms were identical to the home whites except for the baseball head cartoon face ("Old Red") which replaced the wishbone C on the left breast. The sleeveless vest won approval from the players (the Pirates "followed suit" in '57) and remained a uniform feature until the mid-60s.

As if to further underscore the all-scarlet theme, all red stockings were restored and red pinstripes were added to the home whites the following year. The solid red cap was also replaced by a white or gray cap crown (to match the jersey) for 1957. A touch of navy blue reappeared in 1961 as piping rim on the vest sleeves holes and around the "C" on the cap. Also, as if to signify the end of the "Redlegs" era, a modified oval version of the C-REDS emblem returned to the home jersey front (with a navy blue background as in the last version.)

The city name "CINCINNATI" was also restored on the road gray uniform in arched red capital letters with a thin navy outline. The sleeveless vest era produced a fourth pennant (1961), but this time the uniform design was not destined for a long run.

By the mid-60s, a couple of future Cincinnati legends had arrived (Pete Rose and Johnny Bench) and the nucleus of the future Big Red Machine had its beginnings.

The sleeveless jersey was displaced by a conventional short-sleeved model, and navy blue once again was eliminated as a second color. The gray road uniform was basically a revival of the early 50s, except the cap was now solid red instead of navy, and a uniform number appeared on the jersey front.

The first years of the revival of the short-sleeved home jersey retained the red pinstripes, but by 1970, (Sparky Anderson's first pennant winner and the inaugural season of Riverfront Stadium) the home uniform was plain white.

For 1972, Cincinnati joined the rest of the majors in adopting the new double-knit fabric uniform with its revolutionary features. Lighter, cooler, more comfortable and easier to clean - it was the uniform of the future - and the future for Cincinnati baseball spelled glory and championships.

The famous C-REDS emblem was retained as was the all-red trim motif. But with the new built-in sash belt and pull-over jersey, buttons and belts were no longer needed. Red and white striping trim was added to the sleeve ends and collar as well as on the new sash belt.

In spring training of 1978, the Reds jolted the baseball world by stepping onto the field with all-green uniforms for an exhibition game on March 17 (St. Patrick's Day, of course). After a century of basically red-trimmed uniforms, this novelty version had the same curious visual shock value as Andy Warhol's non-red Coca-Cola art. It was all in fun, and the fans loved it. These hybrid uniforms were afterwards auctioned off for charity, and have since become prized collector's items.

The Reds continued their basic white uniform through most of the 1980s, although in 1986, added an optional solid red jersey with "CINCINNATI" spelled out. The Reds added stripes down both sides of the trousers in 1988, and this would be the look for the next several years, including the 1990 World Championship club.

In 1993, the club reintroduced pinstripes, belts and a sleeveless home vest. Both the home white and road gray jersey featured red pinstripes on tops and trousers. The home sleeveless jersey featured the traditional Reds C-LOGO on the left breast, with the uniform number adjacent on the right breast. A solid red undershirt, both short sleeve and long, featured a solid white "wishbone C" logo on the upper-left portion of the sleeve.

The home cap in 1993 also underwent a distinct change. The white cap featured red pinstripes and a solid red bill with a solid red "wishbone C" logo. The road cap remained solid red with a white "wishbone C" logo.

The Reds would not make another major uniform change until the 1999 season. The addition of black to the uniform was the most distinctive change. Black was added as a drop-shadow to the traditional "C-LOG", and was also featured on the bill of the home cap (solid red with a white wishbone C and black drop-shadow), and as the base color for the road cap (red bill with a white wishbone C and black drop-shadow).

The Reds also introduced the "Running Man" logo into the uniform. Both a solid red and solid black undershirt featured the "Running Man" on the upper portion of the left sleeve. Player names and uniform numbers featured solid red letters and numbers, with white and black drop-shadows.

The 2000 season saw the Reds replace the "Running Man" logo on the left sleeve of the undershirt with a new "Running Man" logo that incorporated the anniversary of the club's 10th and 25th World Series titles.

Fred Hutchinson

Born: Aug. 12, 1919 at Seattle, WA
Died: Nov. 12, 1964 at Bradenton, FL
Number Retired: 1965

Fred Hutchinson was a popular and successful manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Hutch's 466 managerial victories and .543 winning percentage rank him among the best managers ever to wear a Cincinnati uniform. The Reds exceeded the 90-win mark in three of his six seasons at the helm, and in 1961, they took the National League pennant.

But the joy of a first-place finish was matched only three years later by the sadness of Hutch's illness and early death. The courage, class and determination that Fred exemplified all his life were all the more evident during his battle with cancer. Hutch stepped down as Reds manager in 1964, and died that November.

The following year, Hutch's uniform (#1) became the first one in Cincinnati Reds history to be retired.

Today, Fred Hutchinson's legacy lives on in the world-renowned Cancer Research Center that bears his name, and in The Hutch Award. It is given annually to a Major League ballplayer who "best exemplifies the character and fighting spirit of the late Fred Hutchinson...who overcomes any form of adversity." Past winners include Ray Knight, Ron Oester, Eric Davis, Bobby Tolan, Johnny Bench and Sean Casey.

Johnny Bench

Born: Dec. 7, 1947

Birthplace: Oklahoma City, OK

Number Retired: Aug. 11, 1984

Cincinnati's uniform #5 belongs to perhaps the greatest catcher to ever play in the Major Leagues. The standard by which all other catchers are measured, Johnny Bench ended his 17-year storied career in 1983 after earning two MVP Awards, 10 Gold Gloves and 14 trips to the All-Star Game. Bench was inducted into the National Baseball Hall of Fame in 1989.

Bench began his career with a bang, earning Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1968. Able to control a game on both sides of the plate, he ended his career with a .267 average and 389 homers (327 as a catcher, which stands as a record for NL catchers).

On the Reds' all-time batting list, Bench ranks first in homers and RBI (1,376), second in runs (1,091), extra-base hits (794) and total bases (3,644), third in hits (2,048) and doubles (381).

Johnny appeared in 22 National League Championship Series games and 23 World Series games. Bench earned World Series MVP honors in 1976 when the Reds swept the NY Yankees, four games to none. He twice led the league in home runs (1970 with 45, and 1972 with 40), and three times in RBI (1970 with 148, 1972 with 125, and 1974 with 129).

Reds in the Hall of Fame

The idea for a national baseball Hall of Fame developed in 1934, when Stephen C. Clark, a resident of Cooperstown, N.Y., purchased what is still believed to be the original baseball. After Clark had purchased the ball for $5, he conceived the idea of displaying it with similar baseball objects for the game's fans. The one-room exhibit in Cooperstown's Village Club drew tremendous public interest. National League President Ford C. Frick also embraced the endeavor and spearheaded the development of a full-fledged baseball museum. Frick, looking for a way to celebrate baseball's upcoming 100th anniversary, also suggested a Hall of Fame to shrine the game's immortals. The Baseball Writer's Association of America was enlisted to select the players who would be honored during the Hall's first class in 1936. The annual voting became a huge hit nationwide, and in 1939, the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum was officially opened. A total of 39 former Reds' players, managers and executives have been inducted into the Hall since then. Of those, nine entered as representatives of the Cincinnati Reds.

Crosley Field History

For 58 years, Crosley Field stood as more than a ballpark in an industrial city that seemed anything but inviting. The colorful home to the Cincinnati Reds, which stood from 1912 to 1970, warmly welcomed Reds' fans to one of baseball's greatest cities.

Located in the run-down West End, Crosley Field stuck out like a refuge in a concrete jungle. Nestled between Western Avenue and Findlay Street, and surrounded by the smokestacks and factories that adorned the skyline, Crosley Field opened its arms to fans, offering simplicity and intimacy to its visitors.

"There it sat, in kind of a dilapidated neighborhood, like a jewel," Paul Sommerkamp, former Crosley public-address announcer, once said. "You'd walk up through the portals to the seats. The sight of that bright-green grass would hit you, and you'd think you'd walked into another world."

Older fans remember Crosley Field as a quirky ballpark that played home to some of the game's greatest players. Before Cinergy Field and the Big Red Machine, sluggers such as Ted Kluszewski, Vada Pinson, Ernie Lombardi, Frank McCormick, Gus Bell, Wally Post and Frank Robinson delighted fans in a park that hosted 4,534 professional baseball games.

Originally named Redland Park in 1912, it was renamed Crosley Field in 1934 after broadcasting magnate Powel Crosley took over control of the team. A year later, Crosley Field played host to the first night baseball game, which would prove to be a success for the team. In the seven night games during the 1935 season, the Reds averaged 18,000 fans per night game. The team averaged just 4,600 during day games.

Two years later, Cincinnati was hit by the worst flood in city history, and the flood waters worked their way over the walls of Crosley Field, which eventually became submerged. This set the stage for what has become one of the most memorable images in Cincinnati Reds history. Pitchers Gene Schott and Lee Grissom rowed a boat down Western Avenue and over the right-field wall. The picture has long been associated with Cincinnati history.

It's said that Crosley Field was home to both the young and old. A 15-year-old Joe Nuxhall made his debut for the Reds at Crosley in 1944. Nine years later, a 47-year-old Satchel Paige became the oldest pitcher in an All-Star Game when he took the mound on July 14, 1953, at Crosley Field.

Despite all of the great moments that took place at Crosley Field, it was the ballpark itself that left a lasting impression on generations of Reds fans.

The Sun Deck was a colorful name for the right-field bleachers that intersected with the center-field wall. A hand-painted white line was used for a ground rule that stated, "Batted ball hitting concrete wall on fly to right of white line - home run." The line wasn't the only quirk, though. A small sign in left field challenged hitters to "Hit this sign and get a Siebler suit free." Post won 11 of them.

Perhaps no other ballpark underwent as many changes and renovations as the ever-changing Crosley Field endured. Its double-decked grandstand was extended from two-thirds of the way down both lines to the left- and right-field corners. Portable seats were installed, removed, re-installed and removed again in many areas. Home plate was relocated twice. A right-field screen went up and down several times, and a state-of-the-art scoreboard, with a seven-foot, 10-inch long Longines clock, replaced the old ground-level board in 1957.

Buildings marked "Merchants Paper" and "Lackner Neon Signs" peaked above the center- and right-center-field walls on Western Avenue. The outfield walls were adorned with advertisements for Coney Island, Shillito's department stores, Coca-Cola, Hudepohl Beer ("Get moody with Hudy"), Young & Bertke Sheet Metal Company and other area businesses.

Fans at Crosley Field could also taste and smell typical ballpark fare. Peanuts, popcorn, bratwurst, red hots, beer and lemonade were ballpark favorites at Crosley. Fans were also treated to a variety of on-field promotions that put them side-by-side with their favorite ballplayers. Those players entered the field from the clubhouse through the grandstands on the third-base side of the ballpark, which allowed fans to see their heroes right before their eyes.

Despite the bond between the city and the ballpark, Crosley Field was abandoned in 1970 for the new Riverfront Stadium. The memories were left behind, and two years later, Crosley Field was demolished. Quietly, the Reds' longest lasting home was reduced to rubble.

Crosley Field Highlights

- ** Cincinnati claims its very first Worlds Championship on October 9, 1919, winning five games to three over the Chicago White Sox. On September 24, 1920, the title is tarnished as several members of the White Sox are suspended for allegedly "throwing" the Series. Cincinnati insists the club would have won no matter what. Chicago's team is derisively nicknamed the "Black Sox."

Powell Crosley Jr.

- ** The largest ever Opening Day Crowd at the Crosley Field location totaled 35,747 on April 15, 1924 in a 6-5 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

- ** Following the sale of the Reds by The Central Trust Company to Cincinnati businessman Powell Crosley Jr., Redland Field is rechristened "Crosley Field" on April 16, 1934.

- ** Larry McPhail and the Reds introduce night time baseball to the Major Leagues on May 24, 1935, as the Reds defeat the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 before 20,422 fans.

- ** A wild crowd of at least 35,000 fans, many standing along the foul lines of Crosley Field, disrupt a Reds-Cardinals night game on July 31, 1935.

- ** Crosley Field's playing surface is under 21 feet of water due to local creek flooding on January 27, 1937. Reds pitcher Lee Grissom and groundskeeper Matty Schwab are photographed in a rowboat crossing the playing surface. Remarkably, the ballpark is made game-ready in time for Opening Day in April.

- ** In 1938 the Reds reduce the dimensions of the park by moving home plate 20 feet closer to the outfield fences. The new distances became 328 feet down the left field line, 375 to center field and 366 down the right field line.

- ** Johnny Vander Meer pitches the first of his consecutive no-hitters on June 11, 1938 vs. Boston.
- ** Crosley Field plays host to the sixth annual All-Star game on July 6, 1938. Ernie Lombardi, Paul Derringer, Ival Goodman, Frank McCormick and Johnny Vander Meer represented the Reds on the National League squad. Vander Meer tossed three scoreless innings as the NL's win 4-1.

** Paul Derringer pitches a thrilling 5-3 victory over the second-place St. Louis Cardinals on September 28, 1939, thus helping the Reds clinch the pennant.

** Temporarily dazed by a home-plate collision, Reds' catcher Ernie Lombardi watches helplessly, unable to retrieve the nearby baseball, as the Yankees' Joe DiMaggio circles the bases for a 10th-inning, World Series run on October 8, 1939. The Reds lose the Series to the Yankees, 4-0.

- ** On April 23, 1940, Crosley Field was the site of the first postponement in Major League history due to a flood. Flood water from the Millcreek backed up into the ballpark through drains, and although the river levels were far below the historic 1937 flood, once the flood stage reached 57 feet, the water began to pool on the field and two games with the Cardinals had to be rescheduled.

** The Reds win the 7th game of the 1940 World Series on October 8, coming from behind to beat Detroit 2-1.

** The Reds' Walker Cooper sets a club record by collecting 10 RBI on July 6, 1949 in a game vs. the Chicago Cubs.

** The second and final Major League All-Star Game is held at Crosley Field on July 14, 1953. A crowd of 30,846 watched as the National League defeated the American League 5-1. Gus Bell and Ted Kluszewski were the only Reds represented.

** A 58-foot high scoreboard is erected at Crosley Field just one week prior to Opening Day. It replaced Matty Schwab's original scoreboard which was built in 1912 and extensively remodeled in 1934. The new scoreboard included a clock and measured 65 feet wide.

** Under manager Fred Hutchinson, the Reds clinch their final pennant at Crosley Field on September 26, 1961.

** In the summer of 1966 Crosley Field plays host to its most famous non-baseball act as the Beatles storm into Cincinnati for a concert. Despite bad weather, more than 15,000 fans showed up for the show.

** Reds partake in the longest game in club history on September 1, 1967, losing to the San Francisco Giants 1-0 in 21 innings.

** The final of 4,453 regular season National League games is played at Crosley Field on June 24, 1970. The Reds beat the San Francisco Giants 5-4.

** The demolition of Crosley Field begins in April of 1972. By the fall of that same year, the hallowed ballpark had disappeared.

One Perfect Night

On September 16, 1988, LHP Tom Browning tossed the only perfect game in Cincinnati Reds history, when he retired all 27 batters faced in a 1-0 Reds' victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

It was only the 14th perfect game (9.0 innings or more) in Major League history, just the 3rd in modern National League history, and the first no-hitter by a Red since since Tom Seaver blanked the Cardinals on June 16, 1978 (4-0).

Browning's perfect game capped off an incredible season in which he posted an 18-5 record, including a 16-2 mark after June 6.

Cincinnati

vs.

New York

October 6-10, 1973

Mets 3 - Reds 2

Game 1 @ Cin. - Reds 2 - Mets 1: Tom Seaver set a league playoff record by striking out 13 Reds, but after seven superb scoreless innings, he allowed a solo homer to Pete Rose in the 8th, and another solo blast to Johnny Bench in the 9th.

Game 2 @ Cin. - Mets 5 - Reds 0: Jon Matlack pitched a two-hitter and struck out nine batters, as the Reds were blanked for the first time in NLCS play.

Game 3 @ NY - Mets 9 - Reds 2: Rusty Staub homered in his first two times to the plate to lead Jerry Koosman to an easy 9-2 victory. The game was marred twice by bench-clearing brawls, triggered when Pete Rose slid into Bud Harrelson at second base in the 5th.

Game 4 @ NY - Reds 2 - Mets 1: Pete Rose hit a home run off Harry Parker in the 12th inning, to give the Reds a 2-1 victory, evening the series at 2-2. Tony Perez tied the game at 1-1 in the 7th with his first homer of the NLCS.

Game 5 @ NY - Mets 7 - Reds 2: Tom Seaver, a victim of non-support most of the regular season, was backed by a 13-hit attack as he out-pitched Cincinnati ace Jack Billingham. The Mets broke the game open with a four-run 5th inning en route to their second pennant.

1919 Series Rocked By Scandal

In the end, the rumors would be true. Following the 1919 "Black Sox Scandal," two members of the Chicago White Sox made tearful confessions to a Cook County grand jury that they had indeed been involved in a scheme to throw the 1919 World Series. That day, Eddie Cicotte and Shoeless Joe Jackson told the story of accepting a large amount of cash, presumably supplied by known gambler Arnold Rothstein, that would be split by eight members of the Sox.

Pitcher Cicotte, outfielder Jackson, third baseman Buck Weaver, center fielder Oscar (Happy) Felsch, first baseman Arnold (Chick) Gandil, utility infielder Fred McMullin, shortstop

Charles (Swede) Risberg and pitcher Claude (Lefty) Williams had conspired with gamblers to throw the Series, and thus entered the history books as the infamous "Black Sox."

None of the players were convicted in court, but all eight were banned from the game for life by the first commissioner of baseball, continued, next page former Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was hired to clean up America's growing favorite pastime.

The supposed involvement of certain players was something of a mystery in its own right. Weaver, who had known about the conspiracy from the beginning, refused to take part and batted .324 in the Series. He was banned for not exposing his teammates.

Jackson, who admitted taking $5,000, batted .375 with a homer and 6 RBI.

But, there were those who were as guilty as sin.

Risberg committed four errors and batted .080, but did not receive a cent. Gandil - the organizer of the scam - on the other hand, walked away with $30,000 and immediately announced his retirement. Cicotte lost two of his three starts and earned a $10,000 payday. He later told the grand jury it was not worth the effort.

Cincinnati
vs.
New York
October 4-9, 1961
Yankees 4 - Reds 1

Game 1 @ NY - Yankees 2 - Reds 0: Elston Howard and Bill Skowron each belted solo homers powering Whitey Ford to his record 8th World Series victory.

Game 2 @ NY - Reds 6 - Yankees 2: The Reds broke open a 2-2 tie in the 4th when Elio Chacon used some heads-up baserunning to score the go-ahead run. Joey Jay allowed the Yanks just two runs on four hits, as the Reds evened the series at 1-1.

Game 3 @ Cin. - Yankees 3 - Reds 2: Johnny Blanchard delivered a clutch pinch-hit homer in the 8th to tie the game at 2-2. Roger Maris then won the game with a homer in the 9th. Bob Purkey suffered the loss for the Reds despite allowing just three runs on six hits.

Game 4 @ Cin. - Yankees 7 - Reds 0: Whitey Ford combined with Jim Coates to pinch-hit the Reds on five hits. Ford left the contest in the 6th inning, but not before he extended his World Series scoreless streak to 32 innings, eclipsing Babe Ruth's record of 29.2 innings.

Game 5 @ Cin. - Yankees 13 - Reds 5: With Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra out of the lineup with injuries, the Yankees resorted to the bench and erupted for six runs in the first two innings. Hector Lopez drove in five runs, as the Yankees pounded out 15 hits off eight Reds' pitchers.

Game 3 @ Cin. - Reds 6 - Red Sox 5: A record six home runs were hit in Game 3, but the deciding blow was a bunt on which batter Ed Armbrister and catcher Carlton Fisk collided in the 10th inning...Trailing 5-1, the Red Sox scratched back, and eventually tied the game on a 9th-inning homer by Dwight Evans.

Game 4 @ Cin. - Red Sox 5 - Reds 4: Luis Tiant went the distance for the Red Sox as they used a five-run 4th inning and held on for the win...Tiant made 163 pitches, allowing four runs on nine hits.

History of the Draft

The game of baseball was at a crossroads in 1964. The game's wealthier teams were buying up amateur talent at such a staggering pace, that the competitive balance of the game was in jeopardy.

The more clubs spent foolishly on raw, unproven amateur talent, the less there became to assist a sagging player-development system. Once rich and self-sustaining, baseball's minor-league clubs had dwindled from 460 teams in 1949, to just 121 clubs by 1964.

By overspending on amateur talent and underspending to develop that talent, baseball was cutting its own throat.

That's why the 1964 season ushered in a new way for clubs to seek out talent. Some of the game's highest-ranking officials instituted a much-debated and much-awaited amateur draft system.

The purpose of the draft would be to stop the upward spiral of excessive bonuses paid to amateurs and to more evenly distribute the available talent to Major League clubs.

Baseball's "free agent" draft would function in a manner similar to that of the National Football League and National Basketball League drafts.

All eligible talent was placed in a pool with every team making a selection. When a team picked a player, it gained exclusive rights to negotiate with that player. In 1965, the Oakland Athletics made Rick Monday the game's first drafted player.

When the draft was first introduced, clubs selected three times a year (January 15, June 1, and September 1), and were only allowed to draft permanent residents of the United States.

The entire January draft and second phase of the June draft were discontinued following the 1986 season, when all previously drafted players were included with newly eligible players in the June draft.

Louisville RiverBats - AAA

2001 INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

In only their second year as a Reds affiliate, the RiverBats went 84-60 to set a Louisville franchise record for victories in a single season. Manager Dave Miley and the 'Bats then went on to capture their first International League title.

The RiverBats opened the Governor's Cup playoffs against Norfolk (Mets). After defeating the Tides, 3-2, in a best-of-five series, Louisville moved on to the championship series against Scranton/Wilkes-Barre (Phillies). The RiverBats were declared champions of the International League after their 2-1 win in the lone game of the abbreviated series.

International League President Randy Mobley made the announcement on 9/12, a day after the tragic terrorist acts that took place in New York (World Trade Center), Washington, D.C. (The Pentagon) and Somerset, PA. It was the first International League title in Louisville franchise history and the fourth playoff title in franchise history, the last coming in 1995, when the Louisville Redbirds won the American Association as an affiliate of the St. Louis Cardinals.

SS Chris Sexton led the RiverBats during the playoffs as he batted a team-high .421 (8-for-19) with 3 doubles, a triple and 3 RBI.

Leading the team during the regular season was OF Raul Gonzalez, who was the most consistent performer in the Louisville offense. Gonzalez led all of Triple-A with 161 hits and led the International League with 39 doubles and 90 runs scored. His .299 batting average ranked seventh in the league.

INF Marty Malloy was also a key contributor to the offense as he ranked among the International League leaders in doubles (2nd, 36) and batting average (5th, .303).

The RiverBats received help late in the season in the form of C Corky Miller and OF Damon Buford. Miller batted .347 with 7 HR and 28 RBI in 44 games after being promoted on 7/7 from Double-A Chattanooga. Buford, who was signed on 8/17 after being released by Baltimore, hit safely 12 of his 13 games with Louisville (20-54, .370, 3hr, 14rbi).

OF Adam Dunn tore apart the International League in his stint with the RiverBats. Dunn, who was promoted on 5/16 from Chattanooga, batted .329 with 20 HR and 53 RBI in 55 games with Louisville before joining the Reds on 7/20. He was named MVP of the Triple-A All-Star Game as he joined Ryan Klesko (1993) as the only players to homer twice in that exhibition. Dunn also participated in the Futures Game during All-Star Weekend in Seattle, homering in that contest as well.

Leading the pitching staff was RHP Jared Fernandez, who went 10-9 with a 4.13 ERA and led the International League with 196.1 innings pitched.

The RiverBats also received strong performances from LHP Lance Davis and RHP Larry Luebbers. Davis went 7-2 with a 3.05 ERA in 13 starts with Louisville, including 7-0 with a 2.26 ERA over his last 8 starts, before being promoted to the Reds on 6/15. Luebbers went 7-6 with a 3.57 ERA in 21 games (18 starts) with Louisville after being promoted on 5/14 from Chattanooga. He went 5-1 with a 2.03 ERA in his last 8 starts of the regular season and then tossed 6.0 shutout innings in the RiverBats' 2-0 victory in Game 5 of the opening round of the playoffs vs. Norfolk.

Representing the RiverBats in the Triple-A All-Star Game on 7/11 at Indianapolis' Victory Field was Dunn, Gonzalez and OF Chris Sheff. Despite an outstanding season, no Louisville players were selected to the International League Post-Season All-Star Team.

At the conclusion of the season the club announced it would drop the word "River" from its nickname and simply be known as the Louisville Bats.

Mudville Nine - A

The Nine enjoyed a strong season in their first year as a Reds affiliate as they finished with an overall record of 74-66 to qualify as a wild card for the California League playoffs. Mudville was eliminated in the opening round of the playoffs as they lost a best-of-three series, 2-1, against Bakersfield (Devil Rays).

The club was originally to be managed by Lenny Dykstra, who was hired in January. The Reds announced Dykstra's resignation on 3/1 as the former All-Star outfielder decided to be with his family. The Reds went on to hire former Red Sox and Rangers third-base coach Dave Oliver to manage the club.

The Nine went 36-34 in the first half of the season, finishing in third place in the North Division of the California League, 1.0 game behind San Jose (Giants). The team went 38-32 in the second half of the season as they finished in second place, 2.0 games behind San Jose.

Pitching was the key to Mudville's success in 2001 as the club ranked third in the California League with a 3.60 ERA. Leading the staff was RHP Brett Gray, who began the season in the bullpen and then became Mudville's top starter. He went 10-4 in 29 games (18 starts) and ranked second in the league with a 2.42 ERA. RHP Mike Neu was a dominant force out of the bullpen as he posted a 2.37 ERA and ranked third in the league with 21 saves. He allowed only 50 hits in 64.2 innings and struck out 102 batters.

The Nine struggled offensively as they ranked last in the California League with a .251 team batting average and 623 runs scored (4.5 rpg). 1B Eric Welsh (20hr, 64rbi), 3B/OF Ryan Lundquist (14hr, 72rbi) and DH Josh Spoerl (12hr, 60rbi) were the top offensive threats.

SS Ranier Olmedo, who ranked third in the league with 38 stolen bases, was the only Mudville player selected to play in the California/Carolina League All-Star Game on 6/19 in Lancaster, CA. No players were selected to the California League Post-Season All-Star Team.

The Mudville Nine changed its name to the Stockton Ports at the conclusion of the 2001 season.

Dayton Dragons - A

The Dragons enjoyed an outstanding season in their second year as a Reds affiliate as they finished with an overall record of 82-57 and qualified for the Midwest League playoffs by virtue of their first-place finish in the first half of the season.

After a 2-0 sweep of Lansing (Cubs) in the opening round of the playoffs, Dayton's season ended in the Eastern Division Championship vs. South Bend (D'Backs) as they were swept, 2-0, in a best-of-three series.

Manager Donnie Scott and the Dragons went 41-29 in the first half of the season, finishing in first place in the Eastern Division of the Midwest League, 2.0 games ahead of Michigan (Astros). The team went 41-28 in the second half as they finished in second place, 3.0 games behind Michigan.

OF Willy Mo Pena was the top offensive threat for Dayton as he batted .264 with 26 HR, 113 RBI and 26 stolen bases. Pena was one of only three players in all of minor-league baseball to record at least 25 homers and 25 stolen bases in 2001. Double-A Midland (A's) OF Jacques Landry (36hr/37sb) and Double-A Reading (Phillies) OF Marlon Byrd (28hr/32sb) were the only others to accomplish the feat.

Pena was one of two Dragons selected to the Midwest League Post-Season All-Star Team. 1B/DH Samone Peters, who led the league with 28 homers, was the other Dayton representative. Surprisingly, Pena was not selected to play in the Midwest League All-Star Game, which was held on 6/19 at Dayton's Fifth Third Field. Representing the Dragons on the East squad was Peters, 2B Wandel Campana, 1B/DH Randy Ruiz, RHP Dustin Moseley and LHP Ryan Snare, who did not play due to injury.

RHP Josh Hall, who missed all of 1999 with right-shoulder injuries and went 0-5 with a 10.57 ERA in 6 starts for the GCL Reds (rookie) in 2000, emerged as Dayton's most reliable pitcher in 2001. He went 11-5 with a Midwest League-leading 2.65 ERA in 22 starts. RHP Ryan Mottl went 15-6 with a 3.60 ERA in 26 starts. His 15 victories tied for first in the league.

Billings Mustangs - Rookie

2001 PIONEER LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

After posting an overall record of 46-29 during the regular season, the Mustangs went on to capture their ninth Pioneer League championship as they opened the playoffs with a 2-1 series victory over Missoula (D'Backs) and then brought home the title with a 2-0 sweep of Provo (Angels).

The Mustangs went 25-12 during the first half of the season, finishing in first place in the North Division of the Pioneer League, half a game ahead of Missoula. The team went 21-17 in the second half of the season as they finished in second place, 6.0 games behind Missoula.

Manager Rick Burleson's squad was led all season by the bats of 1B Jesse Gutierrez and 3B/OF Noochie Varner and the arms of RHP Marilyn Tisdale and RHP Daylan Childress.

Gutierrez, who was selected by the Reds in the 20th round of the 2001 First-Year Player Draft, ranked among the Pioneer League leaders in home runs (T1st, 16), extra-base hits (2nd, 37), doubles (T3rd, 21), slugging percentage (4th, .550) and RBI (5th, 61).

Varner, playing his first full season of professional baseball, made a run at the Pioneer League batting title, ultimately finishing tied for third at .351. His 102 hits led the league.

Tisdale, also playing his first full season as a professional, won each of his first 5 starts, posting a 1.59 ERA (34ip, 6er). He finished the season 7-4 with a 3.05 ERA in 14 starts. Tisdale ranked fifth in the Pioneer League in ERA and third in innings pitched (82.2).

Childress, who was selected by the Reds in the fifth round of the 2001 First-Year Player Draft, went 6-1 with a 3.55 ERA in 14 games (8 starts).

Gulf Coast League Reds - Rookie

At 36-22, the Reds missed the playoffs by only half a game as they finished in second place in the Southern Division of the Gulf Coast League, trailing only the Red Sox.

The Reds' 36 wins fell just one game short of their total for the previous two seasons combined (37-78). The Reds went 23-37 in 1999 and 14-41 in 2000.

First-year manager Edgar Caceres guided the club, which was led by OF Elvin Andujar, who batted .294 with 3 HR, 34 RBI and 21 stolen bases. Andujar tied for third in the Gulf Coast League in RBI and also ranked among the league leaders in triples (2nd, 9), slugging percentage (3rd, .477) and extra-base hits (13rd, 21).

The Reds' pitching staff, which ranked fourth in the league with a 2.79 ERA, was led by RHP Justin Gillman, who went 4-2 with a 1.75 ERA in 9 games (7 starts). Gillman, who was selected by the Reds in the second round of the 2001 First-Year Player Draft, earned a promotion to Billings late in the season. In his only start for the Mustangs, on 9/1 vs. Great Falls (Dodgers), he tossed 6.0 innings and allowed only an unearned run (5bb, 2k) as he combined with three other pitchers for a no-hitter in the 6-1 win.

Reds On the Radio

Marty Brennaman

Reds radio announcer Marty Brennaman received the Ford C. Frick Award on July 23, 2000, in ceremonies at the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY. The award is presented each year by the Hall of Fame to a broadcaster "for major contributions to the game of baseball."

Brennaman and Red Barber (WSAI, 1934-38) are the only Reds announcers ever to receive the Hall of Fame's prestigious broadcasting award.

The 2002 season will be Brennaman's 38th as a broadcaster. He joined the Reds' radio team in 1974 and for the past 28 seasons has shared the 700 WLW Radio booth with Reds Hall of Fame pitcher Joe Nuxhall. In 1989 he shared the Reds' television booth with son, Thom, who currently serves as a broadcaster for the Arizona Diamondbacks and for FOX's national baseball network.

Brennaman has been named Ohio Sportscaster of the Year 12 times, most recently in 1998. He won the Virginia Sportscaster of the Year Award four times while broadcasting basketball games for the American Basketball Association's Virginia Squires, baseball games for the New York Mets' Class-AAA affiliate in Norfolk and football games for both Virginia Tech and William and Mary.

He also has broadcast games during the NCAA's men's basketball tournament, including 15 regional tournaments and seven Final Fours.

This season he celebrated his 50th Opening

On August 11, 1959, vs the Milwaukee Braves he became the first Reds pitcher ever to strike out four batters in an inning, tying a Major League record, and he still ranks among the organization's all-time leaders with 484 games (third), 2,169 innings pitched (fifth) and 1,289 strikeouts (third).

In Memory Of: Ritter Collett

By Hal McCoy

The tragedies and heartaches never stop. A mentor and, more importantly, a friend is gone.

Ritter Collett is no longer among us, gone but not ever to be forgotten. This was the man who took a chance on a raw journalism student fresh out of Kent State University and rode the ups and downs as I learned and ins and outs of covering sports. There were more downs and more outs at first, but Ritter smoothed the path. This was a man with strong resolve. He loved cigars and had them shipped by the bundles from a manufacturer in Tampa, Fla. But when former Cincinnati Reds manager Fred Hutchinson died of lung cancer in 1964, Ritter stopped smoking. Cold turkey. Never stuck another cigar in his mouth.

This was a man who loved opera and Broadway shows. In my formative years, even though I was not assigned to write anything, I would ride with Ritter to cover a Miami University football game or a Cincinnati Reds game and opera music was on his car radio, more often than not with Ritter singing right along - hitting the high notes, too.

I was able to stand behind the batting cage at old Crosley Field to watch batting practice and to watch Ritter work, a starry-eyed 22-year-old wondering if I could ever do what he was doing and gain the respect and camaraderie of the athletes he covered.

I worked for Ritter at The Journal Herald from 1962 until 1966. An opportunity arose in 1966 to move on to a larger newspaper, The Detroit Free Press, and I took it. I loved working for a larger metropolitan newspaper, but I missed Dayton and wasn't enamored with the city of Detroit. When Si Burick, former sports editor of The Dayton Daily News, called one day in 1968 and asked if I would like to return to Dayton, I was ready.

There was a rule in those days that you couldn't move from one Dayton newspaper to the other, since both were Cox newspapers. You had to be away at least a year. It was little more than a year between Dayton jobs and Ritter thought the move was pre-planned, that I wanted to leave The Journal Herald and work for the more-dominant Dayton Daily News. He never said anything to me, but others told me he thought it to be true. He once told me that if he knew I wanted to come back to Dayton, he would have hired me back.

I believe he left this earth still believing that my return to Dayton was full of intrigue.

It isn't true, old friend. It was happenstance. If I had known you would have taken me back, I would have been there. But Si Burick called when The Dayton Daily News had an opening.

So now you are gone and I never had a chance to tell you that. I thanked you several times publicly for being my guiding hand, a teacher, a mentor and a friend. I never cursed you for giving me your old set of left-handed golf clubs to introduce me to a game I did curse.

And now you can listen to all the opera you want, eat a fine meal every day... and I'm sure they won't mind if, one time, if you light one up for old time's sake. You deserve it. Rest in peace, old friend, rest in peace. (Ritter Collett wrote for the Dayton Daily News from 1946-2001.)

Major League Baseball Rules of Interest

Calculating the "Magic Number": Determine the number of games to be played by the team in the lead. Add one to that number.

Subtract from that figure the number of games ahead in the loss column from the closest opponent.

Determining Earned Run Average: Multiply earned runs by nine, then divide total by innings pitched.

Determining Batting Average: Divide total hits by total at-bats.

Determine Slugging Percentage: Divide the total bases of all safe hits by the total number of at-bats.

Determining On-Base Percentage: Divide hits + walks + hit-by-pitch, by at-bats + walks, + hit-by-pitch + sac flies.

Determining Fielding Percentage: Divide the total putouts and assists by the total of putouts, assists and errors.

In a five-inning game, credit the starting pitcher with a game won only if he has pitched at least four complete innings and his team not only is in the lead when he is replaced, but remains in the lead the remainder of the game. When the starting pitcher does not meet the preceding criteria and more than one relief pitcher is used, the victory shall be awarded on the following basis:

(1) When, during the tenure of the starting pitcher, the winning team assumes the lead and maintains it to the finish of the game, credit the victory to the relief pitcher judged by the official scorer to have been the most effective.

(2) Whenever the score is tied, the game becomes a new contest insofar as the winning and losing pitcher is concerned.

(3) Once the opposing team assumes the lead, all pitchers who have pitched up to that point are excluded from being credited with the victory except the current pitcher.

(4) The winning relief pitcher shall be the one who is the pitcher of record when his team assumes the lead and maintains it to the finish of the game. EXCEPTION: Do not credit a victory to a relief pitcher who is ineffective in a brief appearance, when a succeeding relief pitcher pitches effectively in helping his team maintain the lead. In such cases, credit the succeeding relief pitcher with the victory.

Earning a Save: Credit a pitcher with a save when he meets all of the following conditions:

(1) He is the pitcher that finished the game won by his team.

(2) He is not the winning pitcher.

(3) He qualifies under one of the following conditions:

one inning, or

b. He enters the game, regardless of the count, with the potential tying run either on base, at bat, or on deck (that is, the potential tying run either already on base or is one of the first two batters he faces), or

c. He pitches effectively for at least three innings.

Assists: An assist shall be credited to each fielder who throws or deflects a batted or thrown ball in such a way that a putout results, or would have resulted except for a subsequent error by a fielder. Consecutive Game Hitting Streak: A consecutive game hitting streak shall not be terminated if the player's plate appearance(s) results in a base on balls, hit batter, defensive interference or sac bunt. The streak shall terminate if the player has a sac fly and no hit. Consecutive game hitting streaks do not carry over from season to season.

Consecutive Game Playing Streak: A consecutive game playing streak shall be extended if the player plays one-half inning on defense or if he completes a time at bat by reaching base or being put out. Waiver Regulations: From 30 days after the start of the season, players are available for claiming off waivers in reverse order of standings, at the time waivers expire. Otherwise, players are available for claiming off waivers in reverse order of standings at the close of the preceding season. With respect to trades, no waivers are necessary from 5 p.m. (ET) the day after the scheduled end of the regular season through July 31. Induction Ceremony: Sunday, July 28 1:30 PM, Clark Sports Center

Hall of Fame Game: Monday, July 29 2:00 PM, Doubleday Field

HALL OF FAME ROAD TRIP

The Hall of Fame begins its first-ever national tour, when Baseball As America opens at the American Museum of Natural History (NY) on March 16. The exhibit will run through August 18 and then travel to the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County from September 21, 2002 through January 5, 2003.

An estimated four to five million people will see the exhibit, which will travel to eight more nationally renowned museums over the next three years, including: Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, the Cincinnati Museum Center; Florida International Museum in St. Petersburg, FL; National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution in Washington, DC; and the Missouri Historical Society in St. Louis. Three more cities will be named later this year. Visit the tour Web site, baseballasamerica.org, for complete details.

Just like the Hall of Fame experience in Cooperstown, Baseball As America is a national celebration of America's romance with baseball. It represents the richness of baseball as the American pastime and celebrates enduring American values - freedom, patriotism, opportunity and ingenuity. The exhibition provides a revealing, inspiring, humorous and dramatic perspective on America's Game and so doing, foster a new appreciation for baseball, but of our national character.
